PRIEST GIVES ALARM, WARNING WORSHIPERS

Interior of Edifice Harmed by Water; Vestments Are Saved by Pastor.

A spectacular $40,000, five-alarm fire that brought the water tower into play and attracted a crowd of 10,000 persons destroyed the roof and damaged the interior of St. Dominic's Catholic Church, Sixth and E streets southwest, yesterday morning shortly before the 7:30 o'clock mass was to have begun.

The fire broke through the roof above the main altar and rapidly spread throughout the entire length of the edifice. The Rev. Michael Barrett, O. P., who had gone to the parish house next door after saying the 6 o'clock mass, discovered the blaze and gave the alarm.

Worshipers Are Warned.

By the time the fire apparatus began arriving, the Rev. John A. Cowan, O. P., acting pastor, and Father Barrett had gone into the church and cleared it of the early arrivals for the 7:30 o'clock mass and were removing all vestments.

Because of the difficulty the firemen had in reaching the fire in the high vaulted roof and the extreme danger in fighting such a fire, it offered stubborn resistance that was subdued only after Chief George S. Watson had turned in five alarms in rapid succession and had brought the water tower into action.

From a glow in the top of the roof that resembled the light of a "huge cigar" the flames, quickly eating through the shingled covering, became jagged spikes of fire that filled the air with sparks and smoke.

Before it was extinguished, the fire and the water did damage estimated at $40,000, according to Fire Marshal Leonard V. Selb.

Large Crowd Gathers.

When the fire broke out a crowd that was estimated at 10,000 persons gathered in the streets beside the church. Reserve police were called out to hold them back.

Chief Watson responded with the second and third alarms, which were sounded at 7:15 o'clock. Immediately grasping the difficulties presented in fighting the fire, he turned in the fourth and fifth alarms.

The water tower threw a steady sheet of water onto the roof, while firemen within the church battered a hole through the ceiling, suspended 90 feet above the ground, and others crawled through the loft of the church with their hose and poured water on the flames.

Had the fire broken out during the dark hours of the morning the firemen would have had great difficulty in fighting the conflagration, and the edifice in all probability would have been destroyed, it was said.

One Fireman Overcome.

At the height of the excitement J. Y. Jamelson 36-year-old fireman attached to No. 7 Engine Company, was overcome by monoxide gas given off by the apparatus. He was removed to Emergency Hospital, where his condition was reported as not serious.

Several pieces of apparatus remained at the church all yesterday afternoon pumping water from the basement and extinguishing burning embers. The damage is entirely covered by insurance.

The fire originated from an overheated chimney flue that set fire to the rafters.

All day yesterday throngs of people moved along the sidewalk fronting the church, the roof of which resembled the charred ribs of a monstrous skeleton. The interior of the aged structure presented a disastrous picture. Gaping holes among the vaulted arches let in the sky. The beautiful paintings that adorned the walls and the statuary and the marble pillars were streaked with sooty water. The stained glass broken from a number of the windows lay about the floor.

Main Altar Not Harmed.

The main altar, valued at $5,000, and the organ were not harmed to any great extent, it is believed, the Fathers saved the blessed sacrament, the chalice and the vestments.

This is the second fire that has damaged the building. In 1885 ten years after it had been built and dedicated, fire destroyed the sanctuary and the organ. The edifice was remodeled then and had stood until yesterday without any major alterations.

The clergymen said yesterday afternoon that immediately after the fire insurance adjusters had completed their inspection, work of rehabilitation would begin. The new roof will be of metal and the arches of steel. The interior will need replastering, as the heat and the water cracked and stained the walls.

The members of the parish, of which there are about 2,500, will meet for services in the Holy Name Chapel adjoining the church, and in the hall of St. Dominic's School, at Sixth and F streets

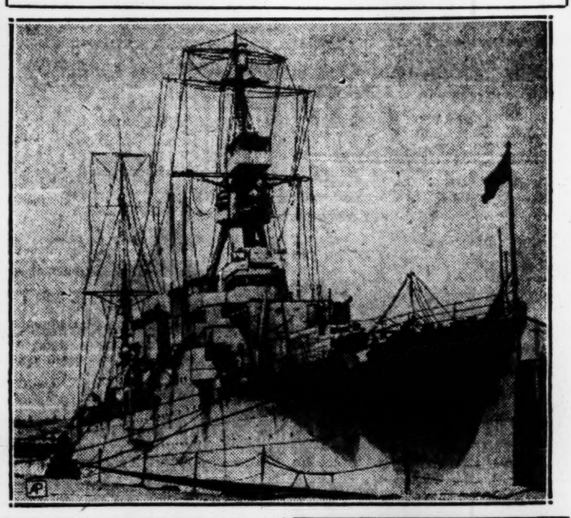
U. S. WARSHIP AT MENACED PORT



198 ARE RESCUED FROM LEAKING SHIP

Alameda Transfers Passengers From Aleutian, Without Injury to Single One.

RETURNING TO SEATTLE

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 24 (A.P.).—The 198 passengers aboard the S. S. Aleutian, which ran aground early today, were transferred to her sister ship, the Alameda, tonight.

The transfer, made in Puget Sound, off Waldron Island, 100 miles north of Seattle, was completed at 9:15 p. m., almost two hours after the relief ship ran alongside the leaking Aleutian. After the exchange of passengers the Alameda radioed that the two craft would start back at 11 o'clock on a favorable tide.

The Aleutian, bound for Alaska, suffered slight damage when she grounded 230 miles out of Seattle on Maud Island, at the entrance to the dangerous Seymour Narrows. She backed off a few minutes after sending out an S O S, but as she developed a noticeable list on her return trip, Capt. J. G. Nord cast anchor and awaited her sister ship to calm fears of the passengers.

Portland, Oreg., Feb. 24 (A.P.).—The radio station at the Merchants Exchange here picked up an S O S from the passenger steamer Aleutian, owned by the Alaska Steamship Co., at 12:15 a. m. today and fifteen minutes later caught a second message saying help was necessary.

The first message said the steamer had gone aground on Maud Island in Queen Charlotte Sound, between Vancouver Island and the mainland of British Columbia. The second said the vessel had backed off the sand with little, if any, damage.

Sydney, New South Wales, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—The British steamer Arafure, Japan to Melbourne, with passengers, radioed today that she had broken the propeller shaft between Rockhampton and Brisbane during a violent gale. The steamer Peshawar is rushing to her assistance.

HIS OTHER PROBLEMS

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President-elect Hoover enters his last week of private life before assuming the Presidency with a serenity of mind and countenance that belie his errant forelock, his ruffled hair and the pressure of work that awaits him.

Yesterday was his last restful day for a long time and he made the most of it. For luncheon he had his friend, Representative Fort, of New Jersey, with whom he likes to talk economics, and later he had as dinner guests his friends, Dr. and Mrs. Vernon Kellogg. Otherwise, he mostly rested. He attended services in the morning at Friends Meeting House on Irving street.

Quite before the end of the week his old-time friends and relatives will be upon him, as will flocks of admirers. Next Sunday, therefore, he will be anything but quiet, with inauguration eve at his door. It will be the day of well-wishers, scores of them, and the following day he will tread the final lap of that long trail which opened for him some fourteen years ago when a lot of Americans became panicky because they could not get out of England.

All the other people of the world seemed embarked upon a backward course at the time, but it was not so with Mr. Hoover.

At any rate, he enters now upon the one week that lies between him and the

Mrs. Wilson was discharged from the hospital today and removed to Jefferson Market Prison, where she will be held pending sentence, which is scheduled for tomorrow.

U. S. SHIPS KEEP GUARD IN CHINA TO AID CITIZENS

Rebel Chieftain Helped by Tokyo, Is Charge; Desire to Keep Troops Seen.

Chefoo, China, Feb. 24 (United Press). Gen. Liu Chen-nien, commandant of the Chefoo area, was preparing tonight for a final drive to exterminate opposition to the Nationalist government of China in Shantung, where Nationalist forces battled rebels under Gen. Chang Tsung-chang and Gen. Chu Yu-pu last week-end.

Liu Chen-nien, who was in charge of the Nationalist forces, reported yesterday the capture of about 800 prisoners in severe fighting at Kuhsienchi where several hundred were killed when the Nationalists forced Chang Tsung-chang's troops to retreat.

Admiral Blakely arrived on board the U. S. S. Trenton in response to appeals of Americans who were alarmed by the fighting and asked that gunboats be sent to Changsha and Chefoo. The sound of heavy guns could be heard during the eighteen-hour encounter.

Other Warships Arrive.

The other American destroyers and one British gunboat arrived with the Trenton. American residents were prepared to evacuate but Consul Leroy Webber said that it probably would not be necesary for them to leave. Webber said the danger was diminishing steadily, indicating that the authorities believe Gen. Liu Chen-nien has control of the situation.

Peking, China, Feb. 24 (U.P.).—Gates to the foreign legation quarters of Peking were carefully guarded today after a demonstration in favor of striking Chinese police had threatened a serious disturbance.

Speakers at a mass meeting urged a march on the foreign quarter, but the pleas failed to arouse any violent response from the crowd. The foreign quarter gates were closed, however, and guards called out.

Nationalists Suspect Japan.

Shanghai, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—That the Nationalist government of China feels that Japan was responsible for the revolt at Shantung last week was revealed when a foreign office spokesman issued a statement saying:

"Chinese authorities have gathered conclusive evidence that Tokyo assisted Chang Tsung Chang's departure from Dairen to Shantung, and assisted him to launch an anti-Nationalist movement at Shantung.'

According to the spokesman, the Nationalist government feels that Japan "instigated the revolt desiring to create disorder at Shantung," thereby providing an excuse for the continuance of troops at Shantung which was nearing termination as a result of the Wang-Yoshizawa negotiations which are now indefinitely deadlocked, over the question of Japanese troop withdrawals from Shantung and compensation for the Tsinanfu incident.

The spokesman declared the Nationalist government did not feel the Shantung affair is serious, being des-

COL. LINDBERGH AT MEXICO CITY TO SEE FIANCEE

Rumors Rife That Trip Is Made for Purpose of Wedding.

FLIGHT FROM TEXAS COVERED IN 11 HOURS

Landing at Valbuena Field after a nonstop flight from Eagle Pass, Tex., in 11 hours and 13 minutes, Col. Lindbergh drove immediately to the United States Embassy, where he was in telephonic communication with Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow at Cuernavaca. The Morrow family left yesterday for a week-end at their country home, and had expected to return tomorrow.

The absolute refusal of all connected with Lindbergh and the embassy to divulge any information made it impossible to verify rumors that the wedding was to be held at Cuernavaca. The fact that the aviator flew here in a four-passenger plane was the foundation for a rumor that Anne might return to the United States with him by air after their wedding.

Col. Lindbergh Is Curt.

Lindbergh was even more curt in fending the questions of newspaper men during his brief stop in Mexico City than he had been on his earlier two visits. The reporters had no help from the embassy employes in seeking details of his plans. They were even told that he was not at the embassy after they had seen him enter.

The meeting with Miss Morrow, which the colonel was so eager to hasten, will be the first since their engagement was announced here on February 12. It was on his first visit to Mexico City, little more than a year ago, that the aviator first met his future wife. It was popularly supposed that he won her hand on his second visit, during which he visited the Cuernavaca home.

It was the chauffeur of the hired automobile who told the reporters that Lindbergh was going to Cuernavaca tonight. The embassy secretary was silent and Lindbergh would only answer "I have nothing to say."

Reporters Kept Outside.

Lindbergh had refused to answer questions put by newspaper men or to even admit that he contemplated going to Cuernavaca, a beautiful resort in the mountains about 50 miles from the capital. The reporters were denied admittance to the embassy, but they waited outside.

Lindbergh soon appeared with Allan Dawson, third secretary of the embassy, carrying two suitcases and the duffle bag in which the aviator brought his baggage in the airplane. They tossed those into a hired automobile in which they set off.

Ambassador Morrow had intended to take up here tomorrow the case of two American mining men who recently were kidnaped and slain in the state of Guanajuato. It was thought likely that the engaged pair might prefer to remain in the greater seclusion of the Cuernavaca residence, perhaps with

Blaze Kills Wife Of U. S. Officer

Lieut. John Clausing Burned in an Effort to Save Mate at Shanghai.

Shanghai, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Mrs. John Clausing, wife of Lieut. Clausing, attached to the Fourth Regiment, United States Marines, here, was burned to death early this morning when fire partly destroyed their boarding house in the French concession.

Lieut. Clausing was severely burned in an attempt to rescue his wife and is in the Marine Hospital, where it was said his condition was serious but he probably would recover. His home is in Rawlings, Wyo.

The Clausings were married in Washington in 1920. The lieutenant came to China in January, 1927, and his wife joined him in November of that year.

Of ten persons living at the boarding house, all escaped injury except Mrs. Clausing. The cause of the fire has not been determined.

Station WSOA Owner Shot and May Not Live

Chicago, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Michael Rafferty, owner of radio station WSOA, and Louis Roelle, manager of Rafferty's Triangle Cafe in Forest Park, were shot and seriously wounded, and four patrons, two of them women, were beaten this morning when eight men from a rival road house invaded the place to settle a quarrel over an automobile collision.

Rafferty, who frequently announced his station programs, may die, physicians said. The raiding party disappeared before police arrived.

MRS. BLALOCK FACES ATTACK BY DEFENSE ATTORNEYS AT TRIAL

Palmist Is First Witness Called by Captain This Morning.

LEAHY WILL ASSAIL CREDENCE IN STORY

Woman May Also Appear Before Grand Jury With Collins.

EXPECTED TO TELL AN ELABORATE TALE

Bride Hopes to Recall Her; Case Likely Now to Go Through to Saturday.

Mrs. Helen F. Blalock, self-professed middle-aged "dream girl" of a "heartsore Daddy" in the person of Police Capt. Guy E. Burlingame, today must face a counter attack by the man she excoriated in her testimony before the special police board which began the trial of Burlingame Saturday on charges she made against him.

The former Seventh street palmist is to take the witness stand again when proceedings are resumed at 10 o'clock this morning in the Sixth Police Precinct Station, on New Jersey avenue between D and E streets northwest, and submit to cross-examination by the attorneys for the suspended captain.

The cross-examination is expected to be a severe one, designed to develop undisclosed phases and episodes in Mrs. Blalock's past, in an effort to destroy the credence which may properly be given to her charges designed to wreck the career of the policeman whom she described as her persistent and successful, but none the less objectionable and repulsive, suitor.

Before Grand Jury Next.

When she completes her testimony before the Trial Board she is to go before the grand jury, and there, under the tutelage of Assistant United States District Attorney William H. Collins, tell a more elaborate tale against Burlingame.

An indictment on criminal charges might result from this, although the worst which can come to Burlingame as a result of the Trial Board action is a dismissal from the police force for conduct unbecoming an officer and prejudicial to the good order and discipline of the Police Department.

The scope of her story before the grand jury will be broader than was her testimony before the Police Trial Board, but whether her story, and whatever else Collins may have, will be sufficient to bring about an indictment of the accused captain is a considerably different matter.

It is not even certain that Mrs. Blalock will get before the grand jury today inasmuch as Collins, who is handling that phase of the affair, has promised that he will let her remain before the trial board today until her examination has been completed.

The cross-examination of Mrs. Blalock is expected to be conducted by William E. Leahy and may last several hours, running on into a night session, for the trial board has been told that Mrs. Blalock's appearance before it today will be her last.

Bride Would Recall Her.

Collins is expected to hold her over until tomorrow to go before the grand jury if the trial board proceedings today continue over long and result in unnerving her.

William W. Bride, corporation counsel, who is directing the prosecution of the charges against Burlingame before the trial board, wants to recall her as his witness this morning, although the prosecution rested its case, so far as her direct testimony goes, before adjournment of the trial Saturday.

Both Leahy and Henry P. Woodard, counsel for Burlingame, will have a right to object to Bride' plan, but in view of the manner in which the trial was conducted Saturday, are not expected to do so.

(Associated Press.)

A resolution to be introduced today by Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, asks the President of the United States to call a conference of nations signatory to the Kellogg treaty to renounce war for the purpose of agreeing upon a limitation of standing armies, active reserves and supplementary troops. The measure is intended to bring about a reduction of standing armies in accordance with the population of the various countries.

Senator Tydings' resolution sets forth that "many governments," though actually at peace, are maintaining standing armies of 1 soldier for every 250 inhabitants. It declares that "the continuance of these large military establishments on land is unnecessary in times of peace," is in contradiction of the spirit of the Kellogg treaty, "and creates distrust and fear in the people of one nation for those of another and seriously calls into question the integrity of the treaty itself."

In order to obtain the best results from the treaty, Tydings asserted, it is necessary to remove these fears. He said the only way to do so was to curtail armies and that this could be brought about only by an agreement whereby all countries would reduce their forces at one time.

THEATER FIRE PANIC AVERTED BY FIREMAN

3 WOMEN FAINT AT SIGHT

Presence of mind on the part of a District fireman, the orchestra and the inside ushers was probably the reason why the capacity audience at the Fox Theater last night did not stampede when a back-drop on the stage flared up and burned, right before every one's eyes. As it was, the list of casualties included only three women, all of whom fainted and were revived in a jiffy with smelling salts in a rest rooom.

The Fox is a fireproof structure and Fireman Herman Brown, of Engine Co. No. 13, who is stationed regularly at the theater, knew that it would not burn, but he took no chance on a stampede. He saw the fire, gave instructions back stage as to calling fire apparatus, turning on sprinklers, dropping the asbestos curtain and the like and then stepped out before the audience and apprised every one of what was going on. While he was doing that the ushers were busy getting to their posts and the orchestra blared out the latest song hit minus five of its members, who, in accordance with instructions at daily firedrills, went back stage and helped extinguish the fire.

After the fire was out and the six fire companies and the rescue squad, which answered the alarm, had departed Brown explained that the reason he went on the stage was because he figured "that the audience wouldn't get

LAWYER IS SUICIDE AFTER AX ATTACKS

BOY'S SKULL FRACTURED

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Feb. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The cold figures of his financial dilemma spun around so desperately in the mind of Gabriel S. Youngwood that he hacked his wife and 4-year-old son nearly to death in their Mount Vernon home and ended his own life with muriatic acid today.

Youngwood speculated in real estate. His affairs became involved and he wrote the same figures over and over again on the backs of old envelopes, telephone pads and newspaper margins. The figures were always hte same.

This morning he lay awake in bed with his wife in their somewhat luxurious home at 48 Devonia avenue west, the deadly figures came back to him and he leaned over and whispered to his wife, "I think I'm going mad!" She was half asleep and said, "Hush, go back to sleep."

He leaped out of bed and got a hatchet. Returning to his room he sprang at his wife and struck. Then he went into an adjoining room and struck his son, George.

Mrs. Youngwood had sufficient strength to telephone to the police. Then she collapsed.

Motorcycle Patrolman Mascari came and Youngwood opened the door. His pajamas were covered with blood and he still held the hatchet in his hand. He looked deathly ill. Mascari had his pistol half drawn, and when Young

Secret Franco-Belgian Pact Aimed at Germany, Charge

Dutch Paper Reveals Terms for War on Berlin or Any Nation Assisted by Teutons; Armed Operations in Dutch Territory Provided For.

Amsterdam, Holland, Feb. 24 (A.P.) Dutch circles were stirred today by the publication in Utretsch Dagblad, a leading provincial paper, of the alleged provisions of the secret Franco-Belgian military convention concluded in Brussels in 1920. By the treaty the two countries would make common cause in event that either is at war with Germany or with any power assisted by Germany.

The newspaper also published the alleged interpretations placed on the various articles of the treaty by the French and Belgian general staffs at meetings held in the summer of 1927. The eighth article of the traty provided that its terms should be kept rigorously secret.

Article I of the convention, according to the newspaper, provides that should either France or Belgium find themselves at war with Germany or with any other powers assisted by Germany each shall place all its available forces at the disposal of the other.

Article II provides that the convention is unrestricted in respect to the Rhine frontier, but shall also apply to any act of aggression on whatever front it may occur.

Article III stipulates that both countries shall mobilize instantaneously and spontaneously without prior consultation immediately upon any third power, assisted in any way by Germany, mobilizing. They shall mobilize against Germany immediately after a cause for invoking the treaty has been established according to international usage.

Article IV commits Belgium to mobilize a minimum of 600,000 men and France a minimum of 1,200,000.

Article V provides that each shall undertake simultaneously a vigorous offensive, compelling Germany to fight at once both north and south of the common front.

Article VI binds the general staffs of the two armies to maintain continually the contact necessary to carry out the provisions of the convention, which shall be subject to consultation at least once a year by the staffs.

Article VII makes the duration of the convention 25 years. Each contracting party is entitled to abrogate the agreement by one year's notice, and the reciprocal absence of such notice shall be equivalent to maintaining it for a fresh period of 25 years. The two parties un-

Auto Alleged to Have Hurt John H. Snydon; None Others Injured.

John H. Snydon, of 3227 Thirteenth street northwest, suffered an injury to his back yesterday afternoon when his automobile was in collision at Seventeenth and B streets northwest with an automobile said by police to have been owned and operated by Gonzalo Zaldumbide, Minister from Ecuador, who resides in apartment 371, Mayflower Hotel.

Snydon was treated at Emergency Hospital by Dr. George McLean, who described his injury as a sprained back. No other occupants of the automobiles were injured. Snydon was taken to his home after treatment. No charges had been docketed.

Legations Leave Kabul In Fleet of Airplanes

New Delhi, India, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Five airplanes today brought 27 passengers from Kabul, Afghanistan, to Peshawar. The entire staffs of the French and Italian Legations were evacuated with some of the staff of the British Legation. An attempt will be made to evacuate the other British tomorrow.

Yesterday the same planes flew to Kabul but were unable to land because the airdrome was flooded. Another plane, however, succeeded in landing Baron von Plessen, who relieves the present German Minister to the Afghan capital.

Pilot Lands 12 Passengers With Plane's 3 Motors Dead

Fences Fall, Tree Is Uprooted, as Craft Halts Near House, But Air Tourists, Including 7-Months-Old Baby, Are Saved.

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Pilot Sam Taylor brought his great Ford trimotored airplane and the twelve passengers he had collected for an air tour of the city safely to earth this afternoon after the three motors of his ship, one by one, had sputtered and gone dead.

Taylor was over the Terminal Tower Building, on Public Square, when the first motor gave out. None of the passengers noticed it and Taylor tried to conceal the look of apprehension on his face. Two of his twelve passengers were children, between 4 and 10, whose father put them on the plane alone. Another was a 7-month-old baby. The rest were adults.

Pilot Taylor thought his two remaining motors would carry him back to Cleveland airport. But while he thought the second puttered and died. He could no longer conceal the look of apprehension on his face.

Surely he couldn't be so unlucky as to lose his last motor, he told himself, hopefully as the plane lost altitude under its reduced power. Then motor No. 3 sputtered and died.

Pilot Taylor knew that nothing but a three-point landing undergear and skid simultaneously—on level ground could save his passengers now.

While he swung the tail of the ship back and forth to slow it up he looked for a landing place. There was one ahead—the best he could find. He lifted the ship and skimmed the railroad track that stretched out under him. Then he made a pretty three point landing on a 50 acre field. With the brakes on full force the giant ship ripped through a couple of fences, uprooted a tree and came to a stop within a few feet of a house on West Sixty-seventh street.

Pilot Taylor breathed a heavy sigh of relief. He had won the toughest battle he'd ever had.

Mrs. Bialock declares that these deposits were gifts which the 63-year-old police captain, already three years behind the time he could have sought and got retirement, sought to press upon her to show his love.

The checks which she made out to him and which he cashed, she declares represented the return of the gifts Burlingame sought to give her. These included a Christmas present of $2,500, a birthday present of $1,500 and a gift of $8,700 which, she testified, he gave her for no especial reason.

All of the remaining witnesses to be summoned by Bride are intended to substantiate the story already told by Mrs. Bialock, whose story, told at the beginning of the trial, is expected to remain the sensation of the proceedings.

Preparations by Defense.

The defense is preparing to show that the checks and drafts and other evidence of financial transactions between Mrs. Bialock and Burlingame simply represented legitimate business dealings between the two, and did not indicate anything else than a business association such as may exist between any other man and woman where there was no thought or suggestion of love.

Other witnesses are to be called by the defense to show Burlingame's record since he was appointed to the Police Department more than three decades ago. Citations for bravery, commendations by citizens as reasons for promotions from private up the scale to captain, will be emphasized.

An effort may be made by defense counsel, too, to show that the whole proceedings against Burlingame had their beginning in personal animosity of others who were anxious to "get him."

How long the trial will last is not known, but it is certain to continue for several days and may not end before Saturday.

There is a possibility that a recess may be taken for two or three days after Mrs. Bialock has concluded her testimony.

Maj. D. A. Davison, chairman of the special trial board, announced that the board would consider such a motion from defense counsel, if it were made, when Mrs. Bialock is through.

Bride also announced that he would not oppose such a motion, although Davison ordered the trial to go ahead Saturday over the protest of the defense, because it was not certain Mrs. Bialock would be in Washington after today.

SUSPECT'S AUTO IS GONE

Los Angeles, Feb. 24 (United Press) Possemen who trailed Harry Palmer, alleged kidnaper of 11-year-old Dickie Grant, to windswept rocks on a mountain slope 4 miles northwest of the Eldorado mine tonight feared that the boy may have been murdered.

After a four-day search in which footprints of a man and a boy guided the possemen across desolate stretches of the Mojave Desert, the smaller depressions disappeared.

The posse of 100 men also followed automobile tire tracks of the peculiar kind believed to have been used on Palmer's car to the mountains.

Shoes brought from the kidnaped boy's home fitted the smaller footprints on the sand. The larger depressions were made by a man with a twisted left foot, such as Palmer is said to have.

The automobile tire prints led over a sandy trail to granite slabs on which the trail was lost. A short time later the footprints of only the man were found. The automobile tracks and the footprints of the boy could not be seen. City Detective Robert Griggin, of Los Angeles, and John Samuelson, desert trailer, believed the man had abandoned his automobile and rolled it off a cliff.

Four years ago Palmer staked a claim between the Eldorado and Lost Horse mines. He was employed later by young Grant's father. After being discharged last December, he obtained permission to take the boy to a party and neither has been seen since.

Several persons acquainted with Palmer have reported seeing him on the desert with a boy during the last week. One woman told of passing him at Twenty Nine Palms, desert headquarters of the posse. The desert shack in which the missing pair is believed to have lived for an indefinite period also has been found.

Two More Women Slasher's Victims

Plainclothes Guards Fail to Halt Attacks in the Boston Subway.

Boston, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—A score of plain clothes men scattered through subway and elevated trains failed to save two more women today from slashing attacks shortly after a suspect had been identified by one of yesterday's five victims. The city's "subway slasher" has now attacked 21 women in crowded cars.

The two women who reported attacks today were Miss Virginia Teleserro, 19, and Miss Mary Allivald, 43, both of Boston. They said their fur coats were slashed and agreed on the description of their attacker, although unaware of the attacks at the time. Like the other victims, they were uninjured.

Police tonight advanced the theory that more than one "subway slasher" has been responsible for the series of attacks in the past two weeks.

Cardinal Vico Is Dead After Illness of Week

Vatican City, Feb. 25 (Monday) (A.P.).—Cardinal Vico, aged prefect of the Sacred Congregation of Rites, died early today. He became seriously ill with influenza about a week ago and his condition had been critical for days.

Antonio Cardinal Vico was born at Agugliana in 1847. He was appointed papal nuncio to Madrid in 1907 and took a leading part in the clerical movement which during the next three years was agitating Spain. He was created a cardinal in November, 1911.

PRIVATE DISCUSSION AIDING REPARATIONS

GILBERT GOES TO BERLIN

Paris, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Private conversations between allied and former enemy experts on reparations during the past two days are said to have been more fruitful than the plenary sessions of the committee striving to arrive at a basis for future payment by Germany of war claims. The atmosphere surrounding the experts' headquarters tonight was more optimistic.

The session scheduled for 11 o'clock tomorrow morning is expected to find all sides in agreement as to the mode of procedure in the future deliberations. American delegates have several times been consulted during the week-end in arriving at this position.

Longer Session Foreseen.

The fact that Parker Gilbert, agent general for reparations, left for Berlin this afternoon instead of waiting until tomorrow was interpreted as meaning that his information is not required at this stage. The experts have reachd a solution whereby the agent general will be heard in Berlin later. This means that th... work in Paris will be continued ...ond tomorrow and that prospects for termination of the conference are remote.

The theory has been that the experts in full committee meetings presented too large a body to give opportunity for exchange of viewpoints between delegates attempting to smooth out difficulties arising between one allied country and Germany or between two allied countries. The experts have felt that private agreements between two or more parties susceptible of drafting upon the general settlement were hardly likely to be reached between delegates representing the parties if they were forced to speak before 28 experts with half a dozen secretaries and interpreters thrown in.

Press More Hopeful.

The portion of the French press which has hitherto been prophesying the collapse of the conference, this evening adopts a more favorable tone.

It is understood that the subcommittee of five experts in its report tomorrow will not mention either the global amounts due to the Allies from the reich or the amount of annuities, but it is reported to have found a solution to the question of Germany abandoning its guarantees concerning transfers affecting exchange. The Allies have agreed not to insist upon an increase in annuities with a basis of German prosperity as a barometer.

The abandonment of the German guarantee against collapse of the exchange resulting from transfers has been the basis of a somewhat violent reaction of the press and public opinion in Germany which has made the task of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht extremely delicate.

More Obstacles Seen.

If, as was said this evening, this matter has been settled satisfactorily it is expected that the work will progress more rapidly. On the other hand, some followers of the committee work believe that the conference is likely to meet with more dangerous obstacles when the discussion of fixing the amounts of payments is reached. They feel that the fact that the subcommittee failed to get at that problem is evidence that the viewpoints may be irreconcilable.

All members of the delegations most directly concerned—since the experts themselves absolutely refuse to discuss matters—admit that the public of their respective countries would be keenly disappointed if the present conference ends with the reparations settlement still in the air.

Bar Association Head Assails Pay Reduction

William R. Vallance, president of the Federal Bar Association, last night expressed dissatisfaction with the second deficiency bill which passed the House containing a clause approving a proposal to reduce the salaries of the higher-paid employes in the Federal service.

Vallance pointed out that the pay reduction can not help but affect the morale of attorneys and scientific workers, both here and in the field service of the Government. Vallance charged that this class of Government employe already is receiving a salary lower than that which could be obtained outside of Government service.

RICH SCION'S DEATH TAKEN UP BY POLICE

F. R. DEININGER IS VICTIM

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Fred R. Deininger, 26, youthful scion of the wealthy General Baking Co. family, died in the General Hospital here today from a bullet wound, said to have been self-inflicted after a party at his home in the exclusive Browncroft section of the city. The case was turned over to the district attorney's office tonight after police found evidence tending to disprove the suicide theory.

Mrs. Deininger was prostrated in her home and was to be questioned further tomorrow concerning details of the tragedy. When questioned by police today she said her husband had been brooding over business affairs and broke into tears over his troubles early this morning after guests at the house party had departed.

Pistol Found "Broken."

When she remonstrated with him, she said, he left the bedroom and walked to a sleeping porch adjoining another room. Then she heard a shot and rushed out to find her husband unconscious on the floor, a bullet hole in his right temple and his pistol lying at his feet.

A physician was summoned and Deininger was taken to the General Hospital where he died without regaining consciousness. When police arrived they found the pistol, which Deininger is said to have used, "broken" and containing one empty shell. The physician who first attended the dying man said the gun was on the floor "broken" when he arrived. Pistol experts of the police department declared it would have been virtually impossible for Deininger to have "broken" the gun after shooting himself, and on the strength of this evidence the case was turned over to the district attorney.

Police also learned from Mrs. Deininger that her husband had fully loaded the revolver only a few days ago, although only one shell was in the gun when the officers found it.

Prominent in Society.

Deininger is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Deininger, of this city, and a nephew of William Deininger, baking magnate and former head of the General Baking Co. He was prominent in society in Rochester and New York and a few years ago entered the employ of the General Baking Co. as a driver in Philadelphia, intending to work his way up in the organization built up by his father and uncle. Later when the Deininger family retired from the baking business young Deininger opened a retail tire business in this city.

His widow and an infant daughter survive him.

J. F. Lawson, Mine Head, Killed in Car

Prescott, Ariz., Feb. 24 (A.P.).—John F. Lawson, 35, of New York, vice president of the Lawson Mine, was killed early today in an automobile accident on the highway leading from Mayer, Ariz., 30 miles from here, to the mine.

Lawson, formerly a member of the New York Stock Exchange, was pinned beneath the automobile, which left the road, and was dead when taken from the wreckage. Marvin Skoquist, mine electrician, who was riding with Lawson, suffered minor injuries.

A verdict of death due to injuries suffered in an unavoidable accident was returned by a coroner's jury. Lawson was a nephew of Thomas F. Lawson, noted financier, of Boston.

Shot, Eye Out, Dying Man Shields His Assailant

New York, Feb. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A young man with his left eye gouged out, his face lacerated and a bullet in his head staggered out of a restaurant in Newtown, Queens, yesterday morning and was taken to St. John's Hospital, where he died at 1 p. m. He was identified as Raymond Clark, 23.

His only answer to questions as to "Who did it?" was, "I don't know and I don't care."

Edward Duffy, 30, was found in the rear part of the restaurant and questioned. He said he had not been in the front part of the place, where the bar is, and knew nothing of what happened.

Both Duffy and Clark worked in the place.

Clyde Liner Engineer Killed in Auto Crash

Smith is held pending an inquest tomorrow.

SEVERAL CITIES ASK DATA ON KIDNAPING

HER HUSBAND RELEASED

San Francisco, Feb. 24 (U.P.).—Authorities in various parts of the United States tonight sought to clear mystifying kidnaping cases in their own cities through information obtained by police here in the abduction of 4-year-old Doris Virginia Murphy, confessed by Mrs. Edna Sharp, 30 years old.

While Mrs. Sharp, with eyes red from constant weeping, spent the day in the city jail awaiting arraignment Wednesday for kidnaping and child stealing, her fingerprints were dispatched to other cities.

First request for data in the unusual case, which was completely unfolded by newspaper men and police Friday with the return of Baby Doris to her parents and the dramatic admission of Mrs. Sharp, was made by James E. Davis, chief of police in Los Angeles.

Inquiry in Los Angeles.

Davis advanced the theory that some one connected with the abduction of the Murphy child has been responsible for some of Southern California's unsolved kidnapings.

Sunday was a happy day for Doris, her mother and step father, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Murphy, and John A. Williams, released after a week in jail as a suspect.

Williams returned tonight to his position of night watchman at the United States Mint here. An apology was made to Williams by Sylvain Lazarus, police judge, when he was granted freedom.

Husband Also Released.

The husband of the confessed kidnaper, Charles Sharp, a truck driver, was also released on his own recognizance when Judge Lazarus expressed confidence he had been duped into believing Doris was his wife's own child by a previous wedding. Sharp was asked to appear at the arraignment Wednesday, however.

William J. Quinn, chief of police, and Duncan Matheson, captain of detectives, heard reports that C. H. Wasson, of Alameda, maternal grandfather, would renew efforts to gain custody of Doris and said they were opposed to any attempt to take Doris from her mother Wasson asked an investigation of Doris' home life a year ago in the hope he might receive custody of the child, but the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children determined at that time she was in good hands.

Sea Searchers Fail To Find 5 Trawlers

Portland, Me., Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Extensive search conducted since early Friday by a fleet of Government and private craft and augmented today by a seaplane from the Squantum, Mass., naval air base had failed to disclose the fate of the five men who were lost from the schooner Aberrance during trawling operations in last Thursday's northeast storm. No trace of their three dories was found.

While fishermen yesterday expressed the opinion that unless the men were picked up before nightfall they would not survive the cold, the quest continued in the remote hope that at least one of the dories would be found. Virtual abandonment of this hope, however, came today when the lighthouse tender Hibiscis picked up near Jeffries Ledge a buoy used on trawling lines and identified as one of those carried by the dorymen.

CHICAGO GANG HUNT SHIFTS TO ST. LOUIS

BELCASTRO THEORY FAILS

Chicago, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Fickle suspicion, flitting day by day to some new clan of outlaws whose illicit trade might have brought them afoul the massacred Moran gang, alighted today on six members of the notorious "Egan's Rats" of St. Louis.

Who these men were police would not say, but imputed to their discredit perhaps a score of murders in the last and said they were wanted for murder in four or five cities. In some instances, said Deputy Police Commissioner John Stege, their tactics were similar to those of the executioners of "Bugs" Moran's seven followers.

Two of these new suspects have been identified by photographs, said David D. Stansbury, assistant State's attorney, as he traced their alleged affiliation with Danny Vallo's Chicago gang. Tonight police lines were laid to bring in Harry Burton, thought to be implicated not as killer but as associate of the kidnaping ring. Burton was acquitted recently while two confederates were convicted of abducting Thomas Gaynor, wealthy automobile dealer, and holding him for $100,000 ransom.

The story of a new-found witness that he saw two uniformed policemen enter the scene of the massacre just before the killings started a check today of Cicero and county police, in the faint hope the witness might identify the pair.

While these freah theories were being tested the investigators tossed away the hypothesis of yesterday that four-fingered Rocco Belcastro was the driver of the death car. Like many another trial theory, it would not endure proof.

Fear of more ruthless reprisals among the gang feudists has been instilled by the reports of 40 police wire-tappers who for days have listened to scraps of conversation among the underworld factions.

Woman Wounded; Farmer Arrested

Widow Says He Shot Her During Quarrel; Near Death in Hospital.

Ozark, Ala., Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Jesse Pouncey, merchant and farmer of the county line vicinity, was placed in the Dale County Jail here today charged with shooting and probably fatally wounding Mrs. Love Nevill, a young widow, about midnight last night.

When questioned by the sheriff at the hospital, Mrs. Nevill stated that she had gone to the store to purchase groceries and that Pouncey drew a gun when they became involved in a quarrel. When she reached for her own gun, she told the sheriff, Pouncey opened fire.

She told the officer that Pouncey is the father of her children and that she had made her home on a farm belonging to the merchant for several years.

Hard Snow Strikes Northern Colorado

Silverton Again Menaced as Skies Lower; Cold Is Killing Trout.

Denver, Colo., Feb. 24 (United Press) Another snowstorm burst today over parts of Colorado, Montana, Wyoming Utah and northeastern Arizona. Colder weather was reported moving into the region from southwestern Canada.

Southwestern Colorado, harassed by snow and snow slides all winter, escaped today's storm. The skies were threatening, however, at Silverton and snow was expected. A storm there would isolate the town again.

Denver & Rio Grande Western trains ran through Animas Canyon cautiously and arrived in Silverton an hour late. It was feared the trains might be caught under slides.

Reports to R. G. Parvin, State game and fish commissioner, showed that even Colorado's hardy mountain trout were succumbing. Hundreds have been found dead, frozen in ice.

Mother Kills Children And Self With Poison

Cincinnati, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Returning to his home here late yesterday William Thomas, lumber yard employe, found his wife, Ruth, 31, and two children, Irene, 11, and Edgar, 8, dead. The mother apparently had poisoned the children and then herself, according to Coroner Fred C. Swing.

A half-filled bottle of poison was found on the kitchen sink. Thomas told police Mrs. Thomas had been despondent since she underwent an operation a year ago. Coroner Swing said that the woman apparently had attempted to drown her children and failing in this gave them poison.

IDENTITY OF TORCH VICTIM IS MYSTERY

SIMILAR TO OTHER CASE

Crawford, N. J., Feb. 24 (A.P.).—The victim of New Jersey's second torch murder remained unidentified today as authorities vainly sought a clew to the woman's identity and to that of the person who shot her and left her oil-soaked blazing body along a country road at dawn Saturday.

Only the vaguest clews are held by authorities, who admit they can make very little headway until the slain woman, whose face was charred beyond recognition, is identified. Authorities from Somerset County, where last sprin, Miss Margaret Brown, New York governess, was found fatally beaten and her body aflame, visited the scene of Saturday's crime, but could find nothing to connect the murder with their unsolved case.

Driver Saw Blue Sedan.

Thomas B. Walsh, assistant prosecutor of Union County, who is conducting the investigation, was disinclined to regard the killing as the work of "any so-called maniac."

The driver of a bakery truck, John Boyle, discovered the flaming body as he drove by and reported his discovery to police. Less than a half hour previous, Henry Denner, of Belleville, N. J., driver for another bakery company, reported he sighted a blue coupe on the spot and a person stood in the road frantically waving to him to stop. Denner said he feared a hold-up and sped on.

Clew Like One in First Case.

Search is being made for the blue automobile that Denner described as having a New Jersey license plate. This mystery car was the sole clew that Somerset County authorities had in their early investigation of the murder of Miss Brown.

Investigators also sought to learn whether the woman was slain elsewhere and her body set afire on the road near here or was killed on the spot. An autopsy showed that the woman died from a bullet fired into the top of her head apparently while she was seated. The skull was crushed as though it had been mashed in with a blunt instrument.

The victim, judging by her attire, was poor. She was about 45 years old, weighed about 155 pounds, was 5 feet 5½ inches tall, had blonde hair, streaked with gray, and blue eyes.

North Carolina Guests To Have Inaugural Fete

North Carolinians in Washington for the inauguration, and their friends, will be guests of the North Carolina Society the evening of March 1 in the auditorium and ballroom of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Gov. John G. Richards, of South Carolina, will be a guest of honor.

Gov. C. Max Gardner, of North Carolina, will be unable to attend, having advised the society that the press of official business will keep him in Raleigh. At least 600 members and visitors are expected to attend the meeting, it was said yesterday. The feature of the program will be an illustrated lecture by Charles Colfax Long on "The Enchanted City, From Dawn to Dusk." It will be illustrated with colored slides and motion pictures.

Boy Silent on Rescue Of Brother From River

Sharon, Pa., Feb. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Although he jumped from a bridge into the cold waters of the Shenango River and saved his younger brother from drowning, John Lazarisnak, 13, refused to tell of the rescue.

"I'm a Boy Scout and I have placed that to my list of daily good turns," the youngster told newspaper men. Eyewitnesses declared the rescue was one of the bravest acts in recent history of this section.

Floating Airport, 300 Miles At Sea, to Be Built at Once

1,200-Foot Structure Will Be Anchored Halfway Between New York and Bermuda; Hotel and Freight Depot to Be Provided.

New York, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Construction of a floating airport, to be anchored 300 miles at sea, half way between New York and Bermuda, will be started immediately, said an announcement today by Henry J. Gielow, Inc., naval architects.

The Gielow firm has been retained as consulting engineers by the builders of the proposed seadrome, the Armstrong Seodrome Development Co., of Wilmington, Del.

The floating field, the statement from Gielow's said, will be 1,200 feet long, 200 feet wide at the ends and 400 feet wide in the center. Six thousand tons of steel and 2,000 tons of iron will be used in its construction. To hold it in place chains 21,150 feet long are to be attached to specially designed sea anchors and piling which is to extend 80 feet below the surface will operate hydraulically within sheaths to counteract the effects of waves and wind.

It is planned to have loading and unloading devices for the transfer of express packages and mail between ships and planes.

The floating airport will have a crew of 43 men to care for the seaplanes, operate the machine shops, run a hotel and restaurant and guide planes by means of radio direction finders.

Mrs. Peabody, 'Angel Of France,' to Wed

Will Become Bride of J. R. McLean, Whom She Once Nursed Overseas.

Mrs. Peabody is the widow of Frederick Forest Peabody, millionaire manufacturer.

The wedding will be the culmination of a friendship which had its inception when McLean, a lieutenant of the 367th Infantry, was wounded while fighting in Argonne sector and carried to a hospital where Mrs. Peabody was stationed.

The wedding will take place in "a few days," to be followed by a honeymoon of six months in Italy and the Argentine Republic.

The representative stated that China was not responsible for the narcotic conditions existing in the world, and placed the blame on Occidental civilization.

Communists Raid Austrian Fascists

Vienna, Austria, Feb. 24 (United Press).—Forty Communists were arrested today when they attempted to disrupt the parade of 6,000 members of the Nationalist Heimwehr (Fascist) who were returning from a counter-demonstration against the Socialist Schutzbund gathering.

A strong police guard was placed between the Heimwehr and Schutzbund gatherings to prevent rioting such as resulted in the death of more than 100 persons in 1927 when the two opposing political factions clashed. The meetings today were not as colorful as the giant parallel demonstrations of last fall, when troops and barbed-wire barricades were used to keep the demonstrators separated.

Rivalry has become so strong that when one organization announces a demonstration the other holds a similar meeting at the same place.

Plane Is Forced Down With Four From Boston

New York, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—An airplane of the New England Transport Co., which took off from Boston at 4:30 this afternoon with four passengers, made an emergency landing on Rikers Island in Long Island Sound tonight. The undercarriage was smashed but the pilot and passengers were uninjured. The pilot said he lost his way in the hazy atmosphere and the fuel had run low.

A ferryboat was signaled and the pilot and passengers were taken ashore at East 134th street.

Bay City, Mich., Feb. 24 (A.P.).—After postponing because of adverse weather conditions their scheduled take-off this morning on a flight to better the world airplane endurance record, Eddie Stinson and Randolph G. Page announced they would begin the flight at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning. Reports indicated ideal weather conditions would prevail at that time.

The Detroit aviators will carry 850 gallons of gasoline when they leave the runway cleared for them on the ice of Saginaw Bay here. Their Stinson-Detroiter, the Sally Sovereign, successfully cleared the ice yesterday in a test flight with 700 gallons aboard. The plane is powered with a Wright J-6 motor.

Johann Risticz and Wilhelm Zimmerman, of Germany, hold the present record for sustained flight without refueling, established last year in Germany when they remained aloft 65 hours 26 minutes. Stinson, who twice has held the record only to see it superseded, said he planned to remain up 70 hours.

Good Samaritan Jailed For Aid to Autoists

Brownsville, Pa., Feb. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.). Fred Richards, 38 years old, figure caller at local dances, went to jail for being a Good Samaritan, all because a State highway patrolman wouldn't believe him.

Richards was called from his home early Friday by two motorists who asked him to help them lift the car from a ditch. Richards gave them the lift and "got pinched" because the trooper was looking for autoists who had figured in a collision. Richards' ablest arguments failed to convince the patrolman.

wood saw it he said: "Go ahead and shoot me! I've taken poison, but it won't work fast enough."

Mascari took the hatchet from him and asked him what had happened. Youngwood told him. The policeman administered first aid to the mother and boy, and an ambulance came and took the family to the Mount Vernon Hospital.

Youngwood tried to leap from the hospital window, but attendants restrained him. He died at 4 p. m.

The father had fractured his son's skull and inflicted a deep gash in his side. Mrs. Youngwood had deep cuts about the body and legs. The boy probably will die, but the mother may recover.

Youngwood was 34 years old and was an attorney, with offices at 1 Madison avenue, New York.

Youngwood's friends said that he had recently entered the real estate field and had made several bad investments. They believe he became temporarily deranged over his financial impasse.

GIRL ASKS FREEDOM; FATHER IS NEAR DEATH

Indian Is Reported Dying in Capital as Daughter Is Held in Home.

AN HEIRESS TO $1,000,000

Chicago, Feb. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Inez Charging Hawk, 18 years old, reputed heir to a $1,000,000 estate from her full-blood Indian father, Saturday made an unsuccessful fight to get out of the House of Good Shepherd.

The technical basis for her plea, presented in habeas corpus proceedings before Superior Judge Marcus Kavanagh is that she is no longer a delinquent child, having reached the age of 18 on January 14. The sympathetic plea was that her father, Sherman Charging Hawk, 72, is dying with tuberculosis in Washington, D. C., where he is trying to arrange for the sale of his Oklahoma oil land through the Department of Interior.

On the question of large, Judge Kavanagh held that the girl is technically a child until she reaches the age of 21.

Almost twenty years ago Charging Hawk was stopping in Chicago on a pleasure trip. He met Ethel O'Neil, who was then 20 years old. They were married without the knowledge or consent of her parents.

The middle-aged Indian and his young white bride went to see the reservation in Oklahoma. The squaws of his tribe did not welcome the pale-face girl into their tepee village.

"The squaws," said Attorney Mary Spencer, "would stick knives through the walls of the tepee where Ethel was sleeping to frighten her away. She was finally forced to leave the reservation. The Indian remained with his people.

"Wh the daughter, Inez, was old enough to think for herself, she followed her mother to Chicago. In the white man's environments she acquired questionable habits. She was arrested, and on March 22 1927, sentenced for incorrigible delinquency.

"Charging Hawk's people contracted the white man's disease, tuberculosis. His brothers and sisters died of the plague. He was left with the family's Government allotment, a square mile of territory, once poor farm land and now rich oil fields. His estate is estimated at $2,000,000.

"Last month Charging Hawk came through Chicago on his way to Washington. On January 25 I drew his will, dividing his estate equally between his estranged wife and his daughter. He was ill at that time. Now he is reported to be dying."

Workers Flee Pier Hit by Leviathan

50 Endangered When Giant Vessel Strikes Rubberized Extension.

Boston, Feb. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Fifty Charlestown Navy Yard laborers, in warping the giant liner Leviathan into the South Boston dry dock yesterday, scurried for safety to avoid being knocked into the harbor's icy waters when the steamer bumped icy waters ized 20-foot pier on which they were working.

The steamer had returned to Boston to complete repairs, for which there was not sufficient time during her overhauling here a month ago. Under the pressure of a stiff northwest wind yesterday morning a 12-inch hawser parted at the eye as the steamer was being nursed by half a dizen tugs into the pier entry to the dry dock.

In two minutes more the monster liner lurched against the rubberized uprights of the outer pier. Most of the workmen saw what was coming and bolted for the terra firma of the dry dock superstructure. A few quick-witted workmen laid down flat on their backs or stomachs to avoid being pitched into the water.

dertake not to sign any military agreement or diplomatic instrument which would annul the convention. In case of war, they will not conclude a separate peace.

The newspaper claims that publication of the convention, which came into its hands by "fortuitous circumstances," was withheld until satisfactory guarantees of its authenticity were obtained.

The interpretations, said to have been arrived at in 1927, contain references to Holland and the possibility of war operations in Dutch territory. They also speak of eventual British cooperation with the Franco-Belgian forces.

JOBLESS MARCHERS ARRIVE AT LONDON

SEEK TO SEE PREMIER

London, Feb. 24 (U.P.).—The army of unemployed limped into London today, footsore and tired after a month's march through bitter cold, but shouting the red "internationale" with increasing volume.

Ending the so-called "great hunger march," the 800 men, who walked here from all parts of England, Scotland and Wales to protest the unemployment situation, converged at the heart of London—Trafalgar Square—to hear vigorous speeches condemning the government and to mass themselves at the base of the Nelson Monument as they sang the song of communism.

Bands Precede Marchers.

About 25,000 workers cheered the marchers as they ended one of the biggest postwar demonstrations in England. Preceded by bands and carrying banners, the unemployed marched in steady platoon-like groups of 25 each through the capital's streets, climaxing their march by dividing and entering Trafalgar Square from five directions. The march started January 22, described as an effort to awaken the nation to the plight of her 1,342,000 unemployed, some of whom were visited by the Prince of Wales on his recent tour of the northern coal mining area.

Many of the marchers carried sacks of clothing, blankets and food and the banners which were displayed by the foremost in each group carried such labels as, "Only Cowards Starve in Silence," "Death Rather Than Starvation," and "We Marched for Capitalism in 1914; Today We March for Our Own Class."

Each group was joined by a band and several hundred unemployed of London. The Londoners looked more tired and hungry than the marchers.

Speakers Harangue Crowds.

As they reached Trafalgar Square, the marchers scaled the base of the Nelson Monument and stood in tiers high on its sides while Laborite and Communist leaders on each of the four sides of the monument harangued the crowds.

The speakers blamed the Conservative party government for the workers' plight, urging a mighty effort to defeat the government in the general elections late this spring.

The demonstration and speeches lasted for two hours, at the end of which time the crowd again sang the "Internationale" and then disbanded, the marchers going to halls and homes provided for them to wait the outcome of efforts of a delegation which will attempt tomorrow and Tuesday to petition Premier Stanley Baldwin, asking the government to act to reduce unemployment.

They will return to their homes late this week on trains, funds being provided by the labor unions.

Men in Good Condition.

Tom Thomas, a Cardiff miner, who marched with the army of unemployed, said most of the men were in good condition.

"The fact is," said Thomas, "that most of us were better fed en route than when we were at home. We also were in better spirits, because walking is good exercise, and we had a definite objective in view during the last few weeks, in contrast to depressing idleness of recent months.

"It also must be remembered that only the most fit in each community were picked for the march."

The marchers included many shipyard, textile, steel and tin-plate workers in adidtion to the miners. Although the march was made in bitter February weather—making the march particularly difficult for Scottish and Durham miners and Lancashire textile workers who tramped for days in knee-deep snow—all except 100 of the starters finished the march.

They slept en route in labor union halls and some of the groups pulled miniature field kitchens.

CABINET PROBLEMS BOTHERING HOOVER

Presidency untroubled by the Cabinet-hunting difficulties that have latterly presented themselves or by the work to be done after his official family has been definitely composed.

He faces the farm problem and tariff revision unafraid. Rather, he has very clear plans about them both. His inaugural speech is still in the rough, but so arranged that the easy-speaking and easy-reading veneer may be put to it in short order.

The Attorney Generalship and Secretary of Agriculture are still giving him the most bother. The indications are that neither has he determined upon a Secretary of War, a Secretary of Labor or a Secretary of Commerce. It is believed, though, that his card index of eligibles would supply these three posts without much drawing.

Attorney General Rumors.

Of the Attorney Generalship, there are rumors that in his anxiety to get an outstanding dry he might go back to Supreme Court Justice Stone and seek to prevail upon him the opportunity that lies at a capable dry enforcer's door. These are only rumors, though.

The mention of Silas H. Strawn for the place is not considered seriously. Strawn's corporation law practice and his connections that made him ineligible to accept the job of prosecuting the oil cases would make him politically vulnerable as the Attorney General appointee.

There is considerable thought that Strawn will land elsewhere in the Cabinet, perhaps the Secretary of War, but there are indications that Illinois politics or factionalism will keep him out altogether.

Senator Deneen who is presumably on top in that State now after his crushing defeat of the Thompson-Crowe-Small machine, saw Mr. Hoover the other day. At the time it was said his call was to urge the retention of Secretary of Interior West.

There is reason to believe that the cal' also had to do with spiking the chances of Strawn.

Donovan Due Today.

Col. William J. Donovan is due back in town today after his work out West, and maybe some light will be thrown on what happened to his Cabinet chances.

That he is not slated for the Attorney Generalship is quite evident from the known fact that it was offered to Senator Borah and that with his declination the search for one of his type is still on.

It may be that with the return of Donovan the War portfolio may wave about him. In his absence even that post has seemed to be under consideration without him.

New York, Feb. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The estate of Albert T. Johnston, a civil engineer, believed at the time of his death eleven years ago to consist almost entirely of his interest in worthless acreage in Mexico, was appraised yesterday at $1,073,340 in the Surrogate's Court in Brooklyn. The net estate amounted to $986,366.

All this was derived from oil which came from the supposed "worthless" land near Vera Cruz, Mexico, on which Johnston had taken a twelve-year lease in 1921. The land did not produce the mineral water, coal and salt he was seeking. In 1906 he transferred the lease to the Tuxpan Petroleum Co., reserving for himself or his estate 5 per cent of any profits which might be made from mineral products taken from the property.

Drilling was started on the land in 1921 and gushers developed, yielding 75,000 barrels of oil a day. The appraisal filed yesterday was made for the transfer tax appraiser's office by James L. Darnell, a consulting engineer. It estimates only the value of the estate to date, as 5 per cent royalties must be paid Johnston's heirs as long as the property produces oil, the Tuxpan Co. having renewed its original lease. Mr. Johnston left no will. His estate is being administered under the intestacy laws. All the heirs live in New York.

ACCUSED RUM RING HEAD TO SURRENDER

STORED IT AT OFFICES

New York, Feb. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—James M. McCunn came home from Nassau and Havana today, and tomorrow morning will voluntarily surrender to Federal authorities to be arrested on charges of violating and conspiring to violate the prohibition act. Of these charges he said: "I am innocent. My friends have been arrested—they are innocent. If anybody's guilty it is me."

He was a strange sight—this man McCunn—a man with personal friends in almost every branch of State and Federal Government who now must face them as an accused lawbreaker.

Aboard the Ward liner Siboney, he was a man who felt himself crushed, broken by the charge that he had conspired to import and sell banned beverages, but who was ready to take the blame if anybody had to.

Sobs As He Speaks.

"I didn't know about this until I read it in the papers in Havana Wednesday. Imagine—I haven't eaten and I haven't slept since then," he told reporters.

"They've locked up my friends—Ed Maloney—why, Ed's been my friend for years. He doesn't know anything about this. They're all innocent. Maloney, Frank Collins—why, they even went over to Brooklyn and got a fine young lady and locked her up too! A fine young woman and now—just because she worked for me—

"She didn't know anything about that stuff. Every bit of liquor that was there is mine by all legal rights—pre-war stuff. I kept it there because I had no place else to keep it." McCunn jerked an already damp blue-bordered handkerchief from the pocket of his overcoat.

"My fine little wife," he moaned. "What'll all this do to her? She's been sick for five years."

Insists Liquor Is Old.

There he sat—this sobbing McCunn—president of the International Postal Supply Co., of No. 634 Prospect place, Brooklyn, secretary and treasurer of the Monroe Lamp & Equipment Corporation.

Tomorrow, when he gives himself up, Federal officials will seek to prove that the International Postal Supply Co. was a blind for an enormous illicit liquor business that he conducted. They will offer to the jury—when it gets around to that—that his connection with the Monroe Corporation, of which Sheriff Charles W. Culkin is president, was but another buffer for the law. They will seek to prove that his liquor business paid him $1,000,000 a year.

"I've had that liquor since before prohibition"—it was McCunn again. "I've given away more liquor since prohibition than I ever sold before. Prohibition came and I had $500,000 worth—I was wiped out."

Cardinal Hayes Voices Joy At Italo-Vatican Concord

PATRICK CARDINAL HAYES.

New York, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Patrick Cardinal Hayes, in a pastoral letter read in all Catholic churches of the archdiocese of New York, today expressed joy at the recent signing of the concordat between the Vatican and Italy.

The cardinal's letter, his first public utterance regarding the treaty, also urges all persons of the archdiocese to observe the jubilee in celebration of the Pope's fiftieth year in the priesthood.

"It is with unfeigned and with unprecedented joy," the letter read, "the whole Catholic world rejoices over the happy and peaceful reconciliation that Divine Providence has vouchsafed as a blessing to Holy Church in the recognition by the Italian Government of the God-given right to independence of the Holy See, the center of Christendom.

"Such a recognition by king, premier and people, in addition to the blessing it calls from heaven, enhances the dignity of Italy and presents a noble example to all civilized powers.

"The spiritual sovereignty of the Holy See can not impinge on nor impair nor belittle the civil supremacy of the state by the latter's appreciation of a realm above and beyond its domain.

"The jubilee year has this added reason of glorifying God for the vicar of Christ now gloriously reigning, who has brought in the seven years of his pontificate unique splendor and luster to the chair of Peter.

"May God grant that the hopes of his holiness will be realized in this year of priestly joy. No more fitting tribute could be pair to the shepherd of Christ on earth than increased faith and piety among his children throughout the world."

tined for quick suppression, but withal it was indicative of "serious issues."

Peace Seen in Peril.

The official went on to say that "the existing relations between Japan and China which are trying for settlement in the interests of both countries and peace in the Orient are at present apparently not destined for clarification.

The spokesman stated that the nationalist government feels that it has exerted every effort to reach agreements with Japan, and having failed, is now beginning to consider turning toward foreign powers to enlist their assistance. His exposition is that Sino-Japanese events now are repeating the trend which began by Japan's presentation of her "twenty-one demands."

Following those demands "China and Japan were unable independently to reach agreements. Thereupon, the powers stepped in through the Washington conference and brought about settlement, the good effects of which lasted until the Tsinan Fu incident, when Japan again dispatched troops to Shangtung professedly to protect Japanese lives and property.

"She now refuses to withdraw despite the fact that the nationalist government feels that no such emergency exists."

A resolution of the Washington conference gave China the right to call a commission of signatory powers to investigate sending of nontreaty troops to China. The member of the foreign office reiterated that the National government, "does not want to take such action but, however, feels that hope of independent settlements is apparently futile."

He added that the Nationalist government feels that the action of Japan in maintaining troops in Shantung results in "virtual nullification of the good results of the Washington conference in maintaining peace in the Orient."

Chefoo Is Reinforced.

Nanking, China, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Military headquarters of the Nationalist government, seeking to follow up the victory in Shantung of Gen. Liu Chen-Nien, today ordered troops stationed in Haichow and northern Kiangsi Province to send reinforcements to Chefoo. Gunboats of the northeastern squadron of the Nationalist navy were ordered to blockade Lungkow, west of Tengchow, to cut off possible retreat of Gen. Chang Tsung-Chang, rebel leader.

Hankow, China, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Dispatches from Changsha today indicate that the Province of Hunan, where the chairman of the provincial government has been ousted by three subordinates was quiet. Gen. Ho Chien, one of the conspirators, has taken over the direction of the government.

Gen. Lu Ti-Ping, the ousted chairman, is hiding in North Hunan and is expected to proceed to Kiangsi Province to form an alliance with factions there. Rumors of hostilities impending between the two provinces are denied here.

Mrs. Morrow and Miss Elizabeth Morrow.

About 50 persons, including Secretaries Fred Hibbard and Allan Dawson of the embassy had waited at the field for several hours because the colonel had been expected earlier. His flight, however, was made without a stop.

Ever since the announcement of Col. Lindbergh's engagement to Miss Morrow on February 12, the public has been expecting a third visit which would enable the young people to appear together for the first time in public as engaged persons.

Public speculation indeed has traveled ahead of that. There are many who profess belief that the marriage is to be performed here, perhaps during this visit of the aviator. At least, they hope that Miss Morrow will announce definite plans for the time and place of ceremony while her fiance is here.

Dark fast was gathering over the army flying field when Lindbergh's airplane appeared. A brisk easterly head wind which prevailed over much of his route from the border slowed his speed so that he required 11 hours and 13 minutes to make the flight. The delay caused no apprehension here, although the government telegraphed stations along the route to be on the lookout for the colonel. The reporters who had hoped to glean details of his romance from the aviator were disappointed.

"Maybe I can see you later," was all that he would say.

Lindbergh was alone in his four-passenger monoplane, City of Wichita, which he had flown from Wichita to Eagle Pass by way of Abilene. He arrived hatless and coatless, but before he stepped out of the plane donned the coat of his dark gray suit and a gray fedora with a black band.

Although Anne was not on the field, a message from her apparently awaited Lindbergh. Dawson whispered something to him before whisking him into the automobile for the ride to the embassy.

Ambassador Morrow telephone to the embassy from Cuernavaca and learned that his prospective son-in-law had arrived safely half an hour before. The ambassador and his family will motor back to the capital tomorrow morning.

Eagle Pass, Tex., Feb. 24 (A.P.).—The Lone Eagle of the New York-to-Paris flight winged off from the Eagle Pass airport shortly after daybreak today toward Mexico City on a mission as yet unrevealed to a gaping world of admirers.

After landing here from Abilene, Tex., last evening to halt for the night, Col. Lindbergh was up bright and early this morning to learn from the newspapers that it was believed he might be en route to the Mexican capital to marry Anne Morrow, daughter of United States Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow. Although the famous flier had announced last night that he was on his way to Mexico City, he left here this morning without amplifying his statement. He again declined to comment on the purpose of his Mexican visit, but through the length of this lonely border, and the breadth of at least two nations, ran the rumor that the colonel might not return to his homeland single.

There has been no definite announcement as to when the Lone Eagle's second "We" alliance will be made.

HUGE WOLF PACKS SWEEPING CANADA

Severe Weather Has Driven Animals Far South of Their Regular Habitat.

BRING INDIAN FAMINE

Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.)—Wolves in great numbers have broken out of the forests of Northern Canada because of extreme winter weather and scarcity of food. The ravenous animals have encroached on settlements and from isolated farmsteads come reports of loss of stock. One party of prospectors with supplies cached on a woods trail returned to find wolves fighting over their food. More than $600 worth of supplies were lost, but a dozen wolves fell before the rifles of the miners. In Northern Manitoba in the scrub country, between The Pas and the mining fields, wolves have been seen in great numbers.

One settler had six sheep killed in one night. Wolves have been seen between Winnipeg and Portage La Prairie and in the eastern part of the province. The Davidson dairy farms on the southeastern part of Manitoba have also been visited by wolves and sheep have been killed there.

Most serious reports come from farther north. Up almost on the shores of Hudson Bay hundreds of Cree Indians are destitute as the result of a poor trapping season. Representatives of these starving redskins have applied to the Manitoba government for assistance, fur-bearing animals having been frightened by wolves.

Indians, too, are in a bad way on account of the scarcity of caribou, another condition ascribed to wolves.

The Manitoba government, too, has been asked to permit the trapping of beaver, now under a closed season, in order to make up to the Indian hunters and trappers for the other animals they have missed.

As yet no human lives have fallen to these marauders, but in the whole northern country from the northern part of Quebec through New Ontario, northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan, into the Peace River country and to the Rockies wolves have been reported.

OPEN LETTER to the

HON. HERBERT HOOVER

Sir:

Reports persist that despite the recent emphatic vindication of the National Origins Provision of the Immigration Act of 1924 by the Senate Immigration Committee, you will nevertheless exert your influence to have this section of the law repealed. We, therefore, take this means of bringing certain considerations to your attention and that of the public.

The National Origins Provision is a part of the immigration law as it stands, scheduled to go into effect July 1, 1929. It is thus the opponents, not the supporters of National Origins, who want the law changed. The opponents, therefore, have the burden of proof. They must justify all the confusion and unrest that a change in the immigration law inevitably involves.

The National Origins basis is the only one which gives every European nation its fair share of the quota and does not discriminate for or against any one of them.

It is, therefore, the only basis which can be said to have any moral support since any unjust arrangement could not command moral support.

National Origins then is the only available basis which offers promise of achieving a permanent solution of the vexed question of quota apportionment for Europe, since any basis which could not command moral support because of discrimination could not possibly stand up against the relentless pressure of antirestrictionist attack.

National Origins also is the only basis of quota apportionment suggested which will not further reduce the proportions in the population of the stock which founded this nation and gave it its institutions.

Against it two kinds of reasons are advanced; (1) technical, and (2) alien or hyphenated.

Under (1) it is stated that National Origins figures can not be computed, or that they are not sufficiently accurate. Complete answers to these charges by experts can be found in the following references: Testimonies of Dr. Joseph A. Hill, Assistant to the Director of the Census and Chairman of the Quota Board before the House and Senate Immigration Committees in 1927 and 1928; in Mark Sullivan's report of the attitude of the Quota Board experts published in the Nashville Tennessean, January 28, 1928; and report of Senate Immigration hearings, 1929.

Assertions, also under (1) that putting National Origins into effect would involve increased difficulties of administration are disposed of by the testimony of Robe Carl White, Assistant Secretary of Labor, before Senate Committee, 1929, when he said in effect that it was no more difficult to administer one set of figures than another.

As to (2)—alien or hyphenated reasons against National Origins—it can be said that the organized opposition to National Origins has from the beginning been demonstrably "hyphenated." Misrepresentations ingeniously employed, have resulted in the deception of a great many intelligent and patriotic people including, we respectfully believe, yourself.

If under such circumstances the effort for repeal is pressed, the question will arise—and it will not down—are American political leaders suggesting that the Government of the United States be used to further the aims of foreign nationalities?

That sort of thing we believe the American people will not for one moment tolerate.

(Signed)

CONGRESS TO MEET NIGHTS DURING WEEK

Senate and House Face Jam on Dry and Reapportionment Measures.

VARE CASE IS COMING UP

(Associated Press).

Night sessions and earlier meeting hours will be employed by Congress this week in the hope of clearing up a legislative situation which is threatening important measures in the few remaining days before the Hoover administration comes in.

Prohibition and reapportionment of the House of Representatives membership are problems facing the House and Senate in a vortex of disagreement with such vigorous positions taken on both sides of the questions that leaders are looking with some anxiety as to the effect they will have on the whole legislative calendar.

The dispute between the House and Senate over the proposal to increase the prohibition fund by $24,000,000 will be only slightly composed by the expected adoption by the House today of a compromise proposal lowering the increase to $2,727,000.

Democrats Make Demands.

Democrats in the House plan to make an effort today to send the bill with the lower prohibition figure back to its appropriations committee with instructions to substitute the $24,000,000 appropriation. The $2,727,000 increase was recommended by President Coolidge.

A difference between the House and Senate over land in national parks is threatening the final approval of the Interior Departmnt appropriation bill with its funds for a vast number of domestic projects.

The House has refused to accept the Senate compromise offered by Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, to permit condemnation of land in the parks, except that used for residence, hotel and religious purposes, and has demanded that all land be condemnable for the purpose of saving forests, without respect to its usages

Senator Walsh has stated that refusal by the House of the compromise would "cause a great deal of discussion," and other senators threatened that the same thing would come about if the House refused the $24,000,000 prohibition fund increase.

Concern Over Appropriations.

The fate of appropriations measures are giving Republican leaders a good deal of concern because of the effect they might have on the program mapped out for the special session to be called after Mr. Hoover becomes President.

Failure to pass such important supply bills as those for the Interior Department and for emergency deficiency needs would necessitate the assembling of the House appropriations committee in the special session, something House leaders are now hopeful of avoiding in order to confine the extra session to farm relief and tariff.

Meeting tonight, the Senate will begin discussion of reapportionment of the House. This controversial measure, however, will have to wait it turn after tonight, since it is preceded on the calendar by a bill for a public market in Washington.

In addition, the Senate first must act upon the Nicaraguan Canal resolution of Senator Edge (Republican), New Jersey, on which a vote is expected today, and hear the report of Senator Reed (Democrat), Missouri, on the finding of his committee against the seating of William S. Vare as a senator from Pennsylvania. The Vare case comes up today.

Action on the bill to continue the Federal Radio Commission as an administrative body also will be insisted upon by Senate leaders. This measure, however, seems to be assured of clear sailing because a petition has been circulated to invoke cloture and thus prevent a filibuster by its opponents.

Lindbergh's Cousin Also Is Traveler

But W. V. Butler Prefers to Make Long Trips Close to the Earth.

Lindbergh may prefer flying great distances by air, but one of the only two first cousins he has travels even greater distances by any method that is available—as long as the mode of transportation is close to the ground.

This is William Victor Butler, representative of a Belgian American Mining Co., now carrying on extensive diamond and gold operations in central Africa. Mr. Butler, originally a Middle Westerner and son of a sister of Lindbergh's father, has been associated with the mining company for twelve years. During that time he has made five trips to the United States. He visited Washington yesterday for the first time and, after spending one day here, left last night for a return to his headquarters in the Belgian Congo.

While here, Mr. Butler was the guest of Earl Lindbergh Seal, of this city, Col. Lindbergh's other first cousin. Mr. Seal's mother is also a sister of Lindbergh's father.

—By JOHN J. DALY—

George White presents ninth edition "George White's Scandals." Book by William K. Wells and George White. De Sylva, Brown and Henderson. Songs costumes and curtains made in Paris by Max Weldy.

How old Tempus, the thief, fugits It doesn't seem like nine years since George White produced his first "Scandals"and yet it must have been that long ago, or more; for the work of art now on exhibition at Mrs. Poli's place, on the south side of the Avenue, comes labeled that-a-way, as they say down South. It gets here just in time to see a change in administrations.

Mr. White has done well by the revue. And, of course, the revue has done well by Mr. White. He is now an old established institution. So that "Scandals" come with their own recommendation. They are good by virtue of the fact that they have good people with 'em—and one of the outstanding features, and strengths, is the fact that year after year the stars remain about the same; though the chorus, of course, as choruses must, changes; one of the real functions of the chorus. The array of talent in "Scandals" runs all the way from the lowly chorines to the high-salaried stars, each doing a bit, when called upon, and doing the bit so well that the entire ensemble is something well worth shouting over.

Though the thought is ofttimes deprecated, it takes many masters to make a revue, from the boys who write the book and lyrics, to the composers, and designers of costumes and scenery, and so on down the line, coming at last to Mr. White himself, who then sets the vehicle agoing He has as his material some of the best balanced cabaret artists and vaudevillians, and old-time comedy teams in existence—notably Willie and Eugene Howard, the Howard brothers of past, present and future glory, and Tom Patricola, the dancing demon, if ever there was one, and Frances Williams, comedienne par excellence, and the well known "host of others;" Harry Richman, for instance, who owns a night club, and Rose Perfect, the singer, and Ann Pennington, still an exotic dancer, and—well, the list is too long for repetition. It is printed under "an all-star cast," herewith.

These revues are either good or bad, and this one happens to be good; which means that it clicks all the way, with precious few, if any dull spots. So here it is, the "Scandals," take it or leave it; but one of the best road shows that has come to the banks of the Potomac since the season at hand got under way.

The truth of the matter is Mr. T. D. Bonneville, manager of Poli's, may tuck away his worries now for a full week—or until the greatest of all American shows, the inauguration, gets under way. If, by any chance, he could inveigle Mr. White and his troubadours to remain over another week the Government could then tear down Poli's and let it go to destruction in a blaze of glory.

There are many fine moments in the White revue; a lot of comedy sketches that are clever, a number of songs that set the heart strings vibrating and enough colorful ensembles to make the old folks forget their age. What more?

A severe scratching of the old head fails to recall memories of a "Scandals" any better than this, though an opening chorus steps up to the footlights and warns all comers, at the opening of the show, that this edition is "Not as Good as Last Year." Well, the girls are telling a fib.

BELASCO

The presentation of "The Blushing Bride," given by the Savoy Musical Comedy Company at the Belasco last night demonstrates that even a very capable company reinforced with two guest stars of proved ability should hold one or two rehearsals before the opening night. After the very charming exhibition given by this same company and the same guest stars in "No, No, Nanette," during the previous week, Washington theatergoers had every reason to expect something worth while from the present offering, but such was not forthcoming last night; perhaps it may be before the week is ended and there has been time for the players to learn their lines and cues.

On its New York record and on such glimpses of the production as could be discerned at odd moments when it moved on schedule last night, there is justification for saying that "The Blushing Bride" is intrinsically worth while as a vehicle for an evening's diversion. Furthermore, the Savoy company, with the assistance of Cecil Lean and Cleo Mayfield, demonstrated last week that a well rounded out presentation is not beyond their capabilities. A few more practice performances may bring the capabilities of the actors into juxtaposition with the merits of the play and, perhaps, by Friday or Saturday it may be worth seeing.

Washington is more or less accustomed to being a "dogtown," where potential Broadway successes are whipped into shape, but it has been many, many moons since it has been visited with so ragged a performance as was offered last night at the Belasco. The voice of the prompter was as much in evidence in the first act as the voices of any of the actors, and even with this assistance there were long, painful pauses while players groped for their lines or tried to smooth things over by improvisation. Singers and dancers seemed to have difficulty in hitting it off with the orchestra, and to make the imperfection perfect there was the incident in the second act when one of the characters stood in the center of the stage issuing audible instructions for another character to make his entrance, which apparently had slipped his mind for the time being. The action throughout moved with the smooth celerity of a one-man Brookland street car.

"The Blushing Bride" may be a good play; the Savoy company should rehearse it a few times and then produce it. That will be time enough to pass critical judgment upon it. W. C. M.

WARDMAN PARK

A Shakespeare comedy "Twelfth Night" brought to the Junior Theater at Wardman Park last week—with four more performances tonight and through Thursday—a very significant figure in the Malvolio of George Vivian, one of that amazing family of "Viviana" who caught tradition of the Bard of Avon from our old friend Ben Greet, and who have been dispensing his immortal lines to varying publics ever since. George Vivian paints, and reads as well, a fine Malvolio. Yet there was one other portrait, that of the arrant fool, Sir Andrew Aguecheek, as played by Henry Fonda that almost ranked with that of Vivian, while Kent Smith, as the sturdy sea captain Antonio, rounded out a trio who proclaimed the bard a living thing.

Of the Junior Theater's own players, there has grown into good estate with use of language and the coyness that befits a Shakespeare maid, the little actress Shirley Horton, who delivered a very nice Olivia. The Viola was well given, too, by Elizabeth Valentine. Rollicking was the comedy of Sir Toby Belch and Maria, though the types held too much of the amateur, while other of the mummers needed more skillful handling of their words and less conversation with the footlights. "Twelfth Night" is well put on at the Junior Theater that brings to Washington, on Friday and Saturday, twice a day, that veteran artist of Shakespeare, E. H. Sothern, in four "dramatic recitals."

THE STRAND

"The Ginger Girls," this week's offering at the Strand, is a snappy piece of burlesque, quite up to the usual standard of this popular theater.

Harry Clexx, who, incidentally, manages the production, and Fritzie White, are the dancing stars. The latter lived up to her press agent's description as "an attractive soubrette and a clever dancer, with a way of her own."

In the comedy phases, Harry Clexx was capably assisted by Freddie Walker, Al Baker and Tom Clarkson.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SPEAKER IS HEARD

VALUE OF PRAYER, TOPIC

A lecture on "Christian Science: the Science of Well-Being," was delivered yesterday afternoon in the Washington Auditorium by Charles I. Ohrenstein, C. S. B., of Syracuse, N. Y., to a large and interesting audience. Mr. Ohrenstein is a member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. He was introduced by Emery J. Thompson, first reader of Fourth Church. This lecture was given under the auspices of First, Second, Third and Fourth Churches of Christ, Scientist, of this city. The lecturer said in part:

"The Bible enjoins us to pray without ceasing. The practice of Christian Science is such prayer.

"When Jesus' disciples asked him to teach them to pray, he cautioned them against public or audible prayer, against word-worship, and supplication, telling them not to be like the heathen who think that they shall be heard for their much speaking—adding, 'for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of, before ye ask him.' He then illustrated his meaning in a prayer which has since been called the Lord's Prayer, and which, as Mrs. Eddy states in Science and Health, page 16, 'covers all human needs.' According to a recent translation, this prayer does not consist of supplications, but of declarations—the declarations that God's name (that which shows forth God—His character or nature) 'must be being hallowed;' that God's kingdom (government) 'must be being restored;' that God's 'will must be being done both in heaven and upon the earth.'

"According to the Gospel of Mark, Jesus said, 'Therefore I say unto you, What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them.' In the Revised Version a note to this text indicates that the Greek word translated into the English word receive, really means received. Correctly translated, therefore, the text in the Revised Version should read, 'All things whatsoever ye pray and ask for, believe that ye received them and ye shall have them.' It is this prayer of understanding that when God made man in His image and likeness, man received all that is Godlike, all that is good, and only that which is good; that man received all that it is possible for God to give and for man to receive or desire—it is this prayer that is the basis of all Christian Science practice and of all true prayer."

Legion Post Plans Anniversary Fete

Music for Poem, Recovered From Body of Soldier, Will Be Played.

The tenth anniversary of the founding of the American Legion will be the occasion for a celebration by Washington Post, No. 1, the evening of March 7, in the D. A. R., Continental Hall. All legion posts of the District will participate and reservations will be reserved for the President and Mrs. Hoover and members of the Diplomatic Corps.

A feature of the service will be the playing of the music of a new war song by the United States Marine Band Orchestra. The music, dedicated to the Washington Legion Post, was written for a poem found on the body of an American soldier shortly before the armistice and brought to the United States by Commander Paul V. Collins, of the Washington Legionnaires.

The accompaniment was written by Mrs. Stuart Johnson, wife of a member of the post, and the piece was orchestrated by Capt. Branson, of the Marine Orchestra.

RENEWAL SERVICES OBSERVED IN LENT

PROGRAM TO CONTINUE

Several hundred married women of the Catholic Church of St. Anthony, Twelfth and Monroe streets northeast, Brookland, yesterday afternoon attended the closing ceremonies of a week of special "renewal services" conducted as a part of the church's Lenten program. The services, held each morning and night during the week, were conducted by the redemptorist fathers, the Rev. Augustine J. Aylward and the Rev. Joseph M. Snyder. The Rev. Patrick J. Conroy is pastor of the church.

At yesterday's service elaborate ceremonies marked the renewal of the baptismal vows, and a special papal benediction was pronounced. The service was open only to married women. The previous week special services were held for the children of the church, which were attended by the pupils of St Anthony's School in a body.

Beginning today, the unmarried women of the parish will attend special renewal services for a week, the next week will be devoted to the married men, and the following week to unmarried men.

All of the services during the Lenten season at St. Anthony's will be conducted by Fathers Aylward and Snyder.

Rotary Members Hear Minister Praise Club

A large number of Washington Rotarians and their guests last night attended special services at St. Alban's Church in commemoration of the anniversary of Rotary International. Services were conducted by the Rev. Charles Warner, pastor of St. Albans.

In his sermon, Dr. Warner called attention to the spirit of international brotherhood engendered by the Rotary idea and predicted that it would have much influence on the future of the world. A special selection of hymns was rendered, including an anthem by the choir.

NATIONAL DEFENSE.

It is to be expected that the naval appropriation bill will be soon adjusted in conference and signed by the President. The bill makes funds available for beginning the first of the new cruisers and for prosecuting construction during the fiscal year 1930.

Congress is entitled to public thanks for making this provision for national security and peace. With the new cruisers in commission there will be increased security for American commerce, whether wars prevail abroad or not. American naval strength will be formidable enough to make any belligerent pause before preying upon American ships.

President Coolidge's idea of suspending construction, both for economy's sake and in the hope of obtaining a naval limitation agreement with Great Britain, was wisely overruled by Congress. The suspension of American cruiser construction for the last seven years has had the effect of preventing an agreement, if anything, because the British navy was increasing its superiority all that time. Now the British government can not hope to retain superiority merely by blocking limitation agreements. It is facing the prospect of ultimate American naval supremacy, and if it wishes to keep the fleets at equal strength it must come forward and negotiate to that end.

As for the economy plea, President Coolidge attached great importance to the desirability of avoiding a deficit, and perhaps allowed his judgment to be swayed against cruiser construction on that account. It may be suggested, however, that if economy had been practiced in avoiding the commitment of $173,000,000 for another Muscle Shoals enterprise in the West there would have been no occasion for adopting a cheeseparing attitude in dealing with the national defense.

The Senate regained its common sense when it struck out the amendment adopted in committee of the whole, calling for the recall of the Marines from Nicaragua. The Nicaraguan situation is an Executive affair, and has been most capably handled by Mr. Coolidge. The only embarrassments that attended the Nicaraguan affair were caused by the intermeddling of senators, whose irresponsible speeches induced South American countries to believe that the United States was alternately imperialistic and pusillanimous in dealing with Nicaragua. The President has pursued a straight and honorable course, strictly in line with American tradition and national duty. The incoming President doubtless will pursue the same course. The attempt in the Senate to interfere with Executive policy in Nicaragua was both intrusive and mischievous, and it is regrettable that Senator Borah should have supported the attempt.

BRING THE CADETS.

A valued subscriber to The Post, in a letter published elsewhere on this page, comments on the exclusion of the West Point Cadets and Annapolis Midshipmen from inaugural plans. These students have taken part in nearly every inauguration. It is mistaken economy when they are not brought to Washington to participate in the ceremonies.

Once in four years a large body of Americans is brought to Washington by the exercises attending the inauguration of a new President. These people gain a rare insight into their Government. Their impressions are detailed to their friends and their friends' friends, so that the bonds between Government and people are knitted closer together. These visitors should be permitted to witness the military and naval cadets marching down the Avenue as only they can march, not only because the exhibition would have a fine effect upon individual visitors, but also because it would add materially throughout the country to the prestige and popularity of the service academies.

In addition, the cadets would be benefited by participating in the inaugural festivities. They enter the service of the Government in matriculating at the academies, and it should be considered part of their education to bring them to Washington, officially, at least once during their four-year term, where they could see the Government in action and gain material realization that they are part of the Government. It would cost only a few thousand dollars to bring the West Point and Annapolis cadets to Washingon on March 4. Congress could not devote this small sum to a better use.

THE APPORTIONMENT BILL.

The Senate will consider the apportionment bill tonight. Skillful opposition to it has been organized, and predictions are made that the bill will fail. It runs the hazard of several filibusters that are threatened in this closing week of the session, even if a filibuster is not directed against the bill itself.

If this bill should fail, thus postponing and perhaps preventing the reapportionment of representatives in the next Congress, a determined effort to put a stop to filibusters in the Senate may be the result.

Filibusters can be robbed of their effectiveness by adopting a rule curtailing debate during the ten days preceding the termination of each Congress on March 4. As these ten days are always crowded with important business, it would be wise to adopt the rule in any event. In the old days when senatorial courtesy forbade a senator from hogging the time of the Senate for his own selfish or sectional purposes it was not necessary to defend the public interest against unscrupulous practices in the Senate; but nowadays, when courtesy is unknown, and when senators who refuse to join filibustering blocs are regarded as simpletons by their colleagues, it is evident that national interests will suffer unless the rules are changed.

All senators know that it is their duty to cooperate with the House in reapportioning the number of representatives according to population. They know that representative government in the United States is now a falsehood, and that the electoral vote of the States is not a fair expression of the popular will. The foundations have become rotten. The superstructure is strong and may stand a long time without collapsing, but Congress knows that the danger of collapse increases every day.

FOOLISH FOOTBALL CHANGES.

The intercollegiate football rules committee should quit tampering with the existing rules. Some one should sue out an injunction against its making effective the rule eliminating the run after the recovery of a fumble. Year after year the committee promises that there will be no changes of importance in the rules for the following season. Then the annual meeting is held, and some such silly regulation is worked out as the fumble rule that has been adopted.

Much of the popularity of football is attributable to the fact that the game combines so admirably the elements of skill and chance. The best drilled team generally wins, unless a "break" of the game goes against it. Two evenly-matched teams may battle all afternoon to a tie unless one or the other has a lucky break. The fumbled ball in the past provided one of the outstanding elements of chance. It brought glory to the player who recovered it and advanced it toward his own goal and distress to the team that lost it. There was no widespread demand that the rule be changed, but the association apparently felt that it should do something, so it remembered the play made famous by Roy Riegels, of California, and decreed that the opportunity for advancing a fumbled ball in the wrong direction should exist no longer.

Football enthusiasts ought to do something about it. The game is in danger of being ruined by becoming too cut and dried, too much of a science and too little of a sport.

WOMEN AT THE GATE.

A question which may soon engage the attention of professional organizations throughout the country provoked a spirited argument in the Baltimore Bar Association at a dinner Tuesday night. The controversy brought out many technical questions of procedure over which the lawyers debated gleefully, but in the end they defeated a proposed amendment to their constitution which was designed to permit women to become members. Four women were nominated for membership last fall, and twice since then the Baltimore attorneys have overwhelmingly defeated the proposed innovation.

Men relinquish their dominion over the professions very reluctantly, and it is not surprising to find certain groups objecting to the admission of women into their clubs. The "stag" party can not be given up without a struggle. For years it has been a favorite diversion for the men, and perhaps a source of some annoyance to their feminine relatives. When once women have crashed the gates of professional associations, what will be left of the "stag" gatherings but fond memories?

This is not the principal point involved, however. Professional organizations have become very important factors in such matters as regulation of practice, promotion of high standards, and advancement of learning within each group. It is not likely that these benefits will be sacrificed for the sake of male exclusiveness. In spite of the action taken at Baltimore, it is a safe conclusion that the women professionals will edge their way into the regular associations, rather than set up professional groups of their own.

ELECTRIC RAILROAD OPERATION.

A report of the committee on railroad electrification of the National Electric Light Association shows that nineteen railroads of the United States are operating electric lines. The aggregate length of track operated electrically has now reached 4,000 miles, but this is only 3 per cent of the railroad trackage in the country. Twelve of the nineteen electric roads are engaged in suburban and terminal operation in the vicinity of large cities.

The $75,000,000 project for electrification of the New York Central Railroad and the plans of the Pennsylvania and Reading companies to spend more than $120,000,000 to replace steam lines have created current interest in the subject. The Pennsylvania proposes to electrify its entire freight and passenger service between New York and Wilmington during the next eight years. This is the most important electrification program ever undertaken, and if it proves successful it will lead to the electrification of the Pennsylvania's 11,000 miles of track. The programs of the large Eastern lines will undoubtedly stimulate interest of other roads in electrification, and competition may compel others to make similar improvements.

Railroad electrification is closely connected with the keen competition that has developed in recent years within the transportation industry. Cinders and smoke from coal-fired engines are responsible for many undesirable conditions in passenger traffic. Where the more modern electric equipment has been installed, operators have found that their business has suffered less from automobile and bus competition. Electrification may be one important means of solving the railroads' problem, but it is a very costly solution and will have to be accomplished gradually.

Cities that are struggling with the smoke problem are bringing pressure to bear on railroads to install electric equipment. Carriers generally find it to their advantage to comply with such demands, because the electric train can be operated profitably in smaller units and on a more frequent schedule than steam trains. It is possible, therefore, that the country will see great development of electric roads within the next few years, especially in regions of dense population. Transportation experts predict that by 1940 a large part of the railroad trackage of the country, including every important terminal, will have been electrified.

UNIFORM VEHICLE CODE

By A. W. KOEHLER,
Secretary, National Conference on Street and Highway Safety.

With the legislatures of nearly all the States now in session, a Nation-wide attempt has been launched to direct attention to the national problem of uniform legal regulation of the operation of motor vehicles for the dual purpose of promoting highway safety and wiping out the traffic chaos that persists in so many localities.

This crusade is based upon the research and findings of the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, organized in 1924 by Herbert Hoover, then Secretary of Commerce, which has functioned ever since for the sole purpose of assisting and cooperating in the solution of a problem of outstanding national importance by providing data covering the most scientific methods of control.

As the horizon of the automobile moved beyond local bounds, it became apparent that the propitious time for formulation of a uniform code was at hand. Where motor traffic had been largely intra-State, boundary lines were rapidly disappearing and a wholly unnecessary confusion was being caused by the unfamiliarity of drivers with what was expected of them when they went beyond their home localities. Staggering statistics of the economic losses chargeable to unscientific and inadequate regulation of traffic startled the country, a conservative estimate placing the figure at $2,000,000,000 a year. Twenty thousand people were being killed each year and half a million injured. The realization that something must be done grew and out of this emerged the first national effort to find a solution.

At the call of Mr. Hoover the National Conference was organized with the aid of those organizations whose experience and knowledge of traffic problems could contribute most to a workable solution. They included the experts of national institutions and authorities of Nation-wide renown. Committees were appointed to delve into every vital phase of the traffic problem, including statistics, traffic control, construction and engineering, city planning and zoning, insurance, the motor vehicle, education and public relations. Their findings were reviewed by the first conference. During the two years intervening before the second conference committees continued hard at work on additional questions of enforcement, causes of accidents and metropolitan traffic facilities, while a special committee on uniformity of laws and regulations, in cooperation with the national conference of commissioners on uniform State laws and the American Bar Association, evolved the framework of a uniform vehicle code.

It has never been contended that the code should be adopted by every State without the crossing of a "T" or the dotting of an "I", but it is laid down as a constructively helpful guide for traffic law improvement embodying as it does the thought of the most profound students of the problem and the experience of the whole country. Its use as the basis of their legislations for uniform regulation of traffic for the protection of life and property and the orderly movement of commerce has been widely approved. Subsequently there was drawn up a model municipal traffic ordinance which, in complete harmony with the uniform vehicle code, provides for the regulation of traffic in its local aspects.

Substantial progress has already been made in the adoption of the code and there is every prospect of more States coming under the banner of uniform regulation before the adjournment of legislatures now sitting. In the opinion of traffic specialists it represents the one logical means of providing the proper answer to a question which vitally affects every man, woman and child in the United States.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Walter Reed Boys.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On Thursday night as I strolled into the Red Cross House at Walter Reed I was indeed surprised to see such a good show going on, so I asked who brought them out, and was told it was Mrs. Marx E. Kahn and Mrs. Rudolph Behrends. I spoke to Mrs. Kahn, who said she had been going out there for some years, and still feels she has something to do worth while.

I am citing this instance, as most people have forgotten the boys who fought for them. Other people go out but I am writing this for those who can and don't go. I think if sometime you would go out into the sick wards for only a few minutes you would feel better for it. Just think this over.

Academies in Inaugural Parade.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have heard a good many expressions from both Washingtonians and people from other cities as to the exclusion from the United States troops to participate in the inaugural procession of the cadets from West Point and Annapolis.

It has been a long time since either of these two splendid bodies of prospective officers in the service of the United States appeared in the Capital City, and on an occasion such as the induction of a new President into office is, it does seem fitting that both of these schools should be represented by their full student enrollment. Aside from showing to people from all over the United States what a splendid corps of officers the Government has, the uniform of each school is distinctive from the Regular Army uniform and makes, therefore, a pleasing break in the monotony of the same unattractive color. The papers here and the inaugural committee ought to make every effort to induce the authorities to order these cadets here on this national occasion of so much importance.

J. C. PATTERSON.

Federal Retirement Pay.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The United States Steel Co. considers it wise and profitable to retire its employes on a pension. Probably next to the U. S. Government that company is the largest employer in this country A late report states that they are paying pensions of an average of $53 a month to over 7,000 former employees. The average years of service was 33 years and age of retirement 63. The employes do not contribute, but the entire cost is paid by the company.

So far the cost of pensions to employes of the Government has been paid by the employes and a balance of near $100,000,000 accumulated which the Government now has the use of, and as the law is now that balance will increase and the Government will never have to pay anything. All the actuaries' figures have been so misleading as to be of no value whatever. Actual results to date have been the accumulation in the Treasury of $100,000,000; some 22,000 employes have been retired, of which number 7,000 have died. This very large death rate is caused by employees not retiring until forced to by sickness, so that instead of a retirement pension it is more of a sick benefit drawn perhaps on an average for not over two years.

It is submitted that as a matter of good business the Government can afford to pay as much as the steel company pays and finds profitable. That amount, added to what the employes contribute, would be more than that provided in the Dale bill now pending in the House, calling for a maximum of $100 per month.

Let us have a real retirement law and not a sick benefit to look forward to after a lifetime of service for the Government, or reduce the amount contributed each pay day by every employe to only the amount required to pay pensions under the present law.

Is a Thief Less a Thief if the Law Doesn't Forbid Stealing?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN David said in his haste that all men are liars, a cynical world chuckled general agreement; but if you should add that all men are thieves, the world would think you a crank.

Yet one statement is as true as the other.

All men are "thieves" because the child is born without a sense of property rights, and therefore takes what it desires without hurt to its conscience.

Honesty is an acquired virtue—a rule of the game adopted by men for their mutual protection.

Being prompted by expediency, men forced themselves to be honest; and when honesty proved to be the best policy, they made a virtue of it and began to love it for its own sake.

All virtue is mere common sense, made moral by the fact that it is profitable.

But learning to practice honesty in commerce did not make men honest at heart.

They refrain from stealing money and give full measure of grain because they fear jail and wish to retain their self-respect; but they remain selfish; they still are unhampered by any inbred respect for the other man's rights; and still they contrive to steal without a sense of guilt.

And though they steal openly and brazenly, they resent being classed as rogues because their thefts violate none of the laws designed to discourage knavery.

Consider the craftsman who contracts to deliver eight hours of labor in return for eight dollars.

If his employer should give him less than the wage agreed upon, he would hire a lawyer to get his just due.

But if he kills time, stops to talk with fellow workers, leaves his bench at intervals and eventually delivers two hours of labor less than the number agreed upon, he takes his pay with a clear conscience.

He steals, and the law's indifference does not make him less a thief.

Thousands of people who scorn "jail birds" and think themselves infinitely superior to the common pickpocket, make a practice of buying goods on credit and failing to pay.

They call themselves respectable citizens instead of rogues, but words can not change facts; and the ultimate fact is that they have another man's goods and the other man has nothing in return.

You may call it shrewdness or careless extravagance or whatever you will, but they profit by taking advantage of another man—just as the highwayman profits by the advantage of his weapon—and they are thieves.

Honesty is not limited by law's definitions.

Whatever the law may say or fail to say, the man who defrauds another is a thief and no other definition will fit him.

The sooner we quit mincing words and class all rogues together, the sooner we can persuade men to love decency for its own sake.

The Children By Edith Wharton

A sparkling serial story by one of America's foremost novelists at the gleaming heights of her power.

SYNOPSIS.

Martin Boyne, a civil engineer, who has been kept busy on projects in all parts of the world, is taking an ocean trip. He is looking forward to another fortnight of solitude, when the steward places a chair next to his tagged "Mrs. Cliffe Wheater." Cliffe Wheater was a schoolmate of his at Harvard. His wife was a friend of those days. Boyne is puzzled by the varied types of children in the entourage and further mystified by its leader. He is told by the gray-haired woman called "Scopy" her name is Judith. She is the oldest child of the Wheaters. The oldest boy's name is Terry, and his health is poor. "Scopy" recounts the tangled love affairs of the Wheaters to explain the group for Boyne. Boyne begins to mull over his own affairs, particularly with a Mrs. Sellars. Hitherto "unattainable," he recalls her husband has died. Terry, the heir-apparent to the Wheater fortune, asks Boyne to intercede on his behalf with his parents to obtain a tutor. Complying with the Wheaters' request he hires a young Englishman. Boyne leaves the Wheaters with their new yacht and their retinue at Venice and journeys to the chalet of Mrs. Sellars. She agrees to marry him but refuses to set a day. They are interrupted by a visit from Judith Wheater, who announces that they have fled the Wheaters because another break seems imminent and the children refuse to be again parted. Cliffe Wheater surmises they have gone to Boyne's and telegraphs him. Boyne decides to see Wheater.

CHAPTER XV.

"DAMN—damn, damn—oh damn." It seemed to be the only expletive at Cliffe Wheater's command, and Boyne felt that he had used it so often that it was as worn out as an old elastic band, and no longer held his scattered ideas together.

He plunged down into an armchair of the Lido Palace lounge—the Wheaters had moved out to the Lido—and sat there, embraced by a cluster of huge leather bolsters, his good-humored lips tinged with an uneasy purple, veins in his blond temples swollen with a helpless exasperation. "Damn!" he ejaculated again.

The place was empty. It was the hour of the afternoon sunbath on the sands below the hotel, and no one shared with them the cool twilight of the hall but a knot of white-jacketed boys languishing near the lift and a gold-braided porter dozing behind his desk.

Boyne sat opposite to Wheater, in another vast slippery armchair to which only a continual muscular effort could anchor his spare frame. He sat and watched Cliffe Wheater with the narrow-lipped attention he might have given to the last stages of a debate with a native potentate on whom he was trying to impose some big engineering scheme which would necessitate crossing the ruler's territory.

But with the potentate it would have been only a question of matching values; of convincing him of the material worth of what was offered. In such negotiations the language spoken, when interpreted, usually turned out to be the same. But in his talk with Wheater, Boyne had the sense of using an idiom for which the other had no equivalents. Superficially their vocabularies were the same; below the surface each lost its meaning for the other. Wheater continued to toss uneasily on a sea of incomprehension.

"What in hell can I do about it?" he demanded.

It was almost unintelligible that anything should have happened to him against which his wealth and his health could not prevail. His first idea seemed to be that it must be all a mistake—or somebody else's damned negligence. As if they had forgotten to set the burglar alarm, or to order the motor, or to pay the fire insurance, or to choke off a bore at the telephone, or, by some other unstopped fissure in the tight armor of his well-being, had suddenly let tribulation in on him. If he could get at the offender—if he only could! But it was the crux of his misery that apparently he couldn't——

"Not that I blame the child," he said suddenly, looking down with an interrogative stare at his heavy blond-haired hands, with their glossy nails and one broad gold ring with an uncut sapphire. He raised his eyes and examined Boyne, who instantly felt himself leaping to the guard of his own face.

"That business of the money—you understand, Judith didn't in the least realise . . ." Boyne began.

"'Oh, damn the money.' That question was swept away with a brush of the hand: Boyne had noticed that the poor little letter of confession he had extracted from Judith had received hardly a glance from her father, who had pocketed the banknotes as carelessly as if they were a gambling debt. Evidently the Lido Palace values were different. It was the hideous inconvenience of it all that was gnawing at Wheater—and also, to be fair to him, a vague muddled distress about his children. "I didn't know the poor little chaps cared so much," was all this emotion wrung from him; none the less, Boyne felt, it was sincere.

"They care most awfully for each other—and very much for you and Joyce. What they need beyond everything is a home; a home with you two at its head."

"Oh, damn," Wheater groaned again. It was as if Boyne had proposed to him to ascend the throne of England. What was the use of dealing in impossibles? There were things which even his money couldn't buy—and when you stripped him of the sense of its omnipotence he squirmed like a snail out of its shell.

"Why can't there not be rows?" he began again, perspiring with the oppression of his helplessness.

"There wouldn't be if you and Joyce would only come to an understanding."

The aggrieved husband met this derisively. "Joyce—and an understanding!"

"Well—she's awfully fond of the children; and so are you. And they're devoted to both of you, all of them. Why can't you and she agree to bury your differences and arrange your lives so that you can keep the children together and give them something that looks like a home, while you both . . . well, do whatever you like. . . privately . . ." Boyne felt his lips drying as they framed this arid proposal.

"But the children—I'm sure she doesn't want to part with them."

"No; and no more do I. And what's more, I won't!" He brought down a clenched fist on the leather protuberance at his elbow. It sank in soggily, as if the Lido armchair had been the symbol of Joyce's sullen opposition. "By God, I can dictate my terms," Wheater pursued, sonorously but without conviction.

Boyne stood up with a sense of weariness. His bones felt as stiff as if he had been trying to hang on to a jagged rock above a precipice; his mind anticipated in their ache.

"Look here, Cliffe, what's the use of threats? Of course, you're all-powerful. Bet een you, Joyce and you can easily destroy these children's lives. . . ."

"Oh, see here!" Wheater protested.

"Destroy their lives. Look at that poor Doll Westway, who was kicked about from pillar to post. . . . Judith told me her miserable story. . . ."

"I don't see the resemblance. And what's more, I strongly object to being classed with a down-and-outer like Charlie Westway. Why, man, no law court in the world would have given a blackguard like that the custody of his children. Whereas mine will always be perfectly safe in my hands, and Joyce knows it; and so do her lawyers."

"I dare say; but the trouble is that the children need Joyce at least as much as they do you. And they need something that neither one of you can give them separately. They need you and Joyce together; that's what a home is made of—togetherness . . . the mysterious atmosphere. . . ." Boyne broke off, nervously swallowing his own eloquence.

Wheater gave him a helpless look. "Have a drink?" he suggested. He waved his hand to the white-coated guardians of the lift. Far off across the empty reaches of the hall a waiter appeared with napkin and tray—sail and raft of a desert ocean. "Hi!" Wheater called out feverishly. Boyne wondered that he did not brandish his handkerchief at the end of a stick. The two men drank in a desperate silence.

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

The Parent Counselor.

Helen Wills—23 Love.

WE all love her. We are all interested in her coming marriage. We girls (yes, for a moment, I'll be one) have been quite stirred by her remarks when she talked of her future.

"I shall never stop playing tennis until I am too old to lift a racket.

'I see no reason why love and marriage should prevent a modern woman of intelligence from following an artistic career.

"Marriage is a normal development of life—it should be treated normally—and if that is done other interests should not be halted or interrupted.

"It seems to me possible that a career in business or art or athletics can be made compatible with marriage.

"I still have college to finish.

"I intend to make a good wife."

Miss Wills is anything but loquacious and has the reputation of having a poker face and a noncommittal air. More silence to the rest of us if we could only say as much and say it in as few words as she has done.

In less than 100 words Helen Wills has set before us girls her answers to problems which will face the majority of us. She has said a great deal, and every girl reader will discover before her life is finished that Helen's six points will face her many times!

Now, girls, we have read and reread them. You have agreed completely, partially or not at all. May I say a word before we separate?

Let every one of us do everything possible to choose a vocation a hobby or an avocation which rewards our finer selves enough to make us want to continue it after our marriage. It always seems a pity that so many of us look upon marriage as a release from our job. How we must have hated the job!

Marriage, as Helen says, is a normal development of life. It is a part of one's growth because it is a part of one's experience. Real growth is not put on and taken off like a fur coat. Marriage doesn't mean dropping all one's old life. How could a real artist completely drop her interest in art when she marries?

Whether or not a career in a vocation and a career in a home are compatible is a question which every one of us girls will have to settle for ourselves. I receive many letters on both sides. Children, cooperation of the husband, opportunities in the particular community for continuing one's vocation—all these, and others, enter in.

"I still have college to finish." Oh, if only we girls would take that remark to heart. Yes, and even more perhaps those girls who want to drop out of high school and marry.

"I intend to make a good wife." What a gloriously simple statement! Really the keystone of the arch. The one stone which must retain its shape and size. The others may be remodeled as time goes on.

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.

"When I Was Young——"

Why is it mothers can't seem to trust their own daughters to go to dances just because they hear things about other girls? I love to dance, but mother and dad never want me to go because they say they never went when they were my age. Is this fair?

NEARLY FIFTEEN.

Answer—If we could only find out whether they, too, teased to go! I can not advise because I know nothing of the quality and quantity in this particular dance situation.

Why Stay GRAY?

WHY TOLERATE GRAY hair? No excuse for it when Kolor-Bak, a clean, colorless, scientific liquid, will impart color to hair, whether blonde, auburn, brown or black! Can't harm the finest hair. No worry over shade—the one bottle is right for all. Easily applied, with no uncertainty—it is sold on a money-back guarantee. Why use preparations which so often produce that dull, dyed look worse than gray, when there is such an efficient way to secure results without experiment!

The Fifth avenue traffic towers are to be torn down and after that New York motorists will have to find some other means of getting the wrong time.

What to do with the towers is a problem of the hour and there are some people who have a notion that, placed about the city, they would solve the problem of what to do with old razor blades.

Amos Q. Pipp has put in an application for one in his back yard. He thinks a traffic tower would offer a swell place to go and get away from Mrs. Pipp.

ROCKEFELLER VOTE SEEN FOR MOFFETT

New Jersey Standard Oil Co. Official Being Boomed to Succeed Stewart.

SEUBERT'S NAME DROPPED

New York, Feb. 24 (U.P.).—The son of one of the founders of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana is to be advanced by John D. Rockefeller, jr., to supplant Col. Robert W. Stewart on the board of directors of that corporation, according to reports current in the New York financial district here.

The selection of the Rockefeller forces is said to have fallen upon James A. Moffett, vice president and at present a director of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey.

Informed sources discount reports that the Rockefeller strength in the annual meeting of shareholders at Whiting, Ind., March 7 will be behind President E. G. Seubert, of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, who was unquestionably the original choice of Rockefeller, but who challenged the Rockefeller interests by outspoken public support of Stewart.

Support of the report of Moffett's selection is found by close observers of the Rockefeller-Stewart fight in the often-repeated declaration of Rockefeller leaders that Rockefeller believes the public has lost confidence in Stewart's leadership of the company. The Moffett name has been prominent in the financial and the social world here for many years. He was at one time identified with Standard Oil of Indiana and his father was one of the founders of the corporation in June, 1889.

It would be necessary, it is pointed out, in the event of Moffett's selection to the directorate of the Indiana Standard Oil for him to sever his connection with the New Jersey corporation to avoid running afoul of the Federal court dissolution decree forbidding interlocking directorates.

Spokesmen for the Rockefeller interests decline to indicate whether the Rockefeller proxy committee will oppose President Seubert's reelection to the board or that of directors, all of whom have expressed support of Stewart.

With but a week and a half to go the opposing proxy camps were feverish with activity today and confident claims were made. The Rockefeller forces still stand by their claim of 55 per cent of proxies in hand. The Stewart supporters say they have a majority of the stockholders backing them and are rapidly approaching a majority of the stock representation in proxies. During the next few days the final drive will be made to persuade stockholders to change proxies already given to the opposing camp.

CURB'S PRICES SOAR AS TRADING SHRINKS

Many Stocks Recover All of Losses; Few Groups Continue to Lag.

OIL SHARES ARE HEAVY

New York, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—The curb market wound up the shortened week with a strong advance after three days of uncertain price trends and a falling off in trading, which on Wednesday reached the smallest volume in more than a year. Some of the earlier selling was by traders with margin accounts impaired on other exchanges in the preceding week's reactions.

Many of the rallies on Thursday were in stocks that had been under pressure the first of the week, and gains ranged from 7 to 50 points. Utilities and oils, however, did not share in the general advance, the former being unsettled by threats of controlling legislation. Easier money rates and several excellent earnings reports were factors contributing to the advance.

Goldman Sachs Trading made one of the sharpest recoveries, regaining nearly all its loss on Thursday after dropping 30 points on Monday to 190½. Auburn Auto skidded 30 points to 155, but snapped back at the close to 179½, while Checker Cab, at one time as low as 75, more than recovered its loss, closing at 85. Transamerica Corporation, after dropping 5 points to 125, rallied to above 130. General Tire, with a 37-point drop to 236, and Singer Manufacturing, with a 50½-point drop to 570, failed to recover.

In the unsettled utility group, Electric Bond & Share fell back to below 260, after a 15-point advance to above 266. American Foreign Power warrants were a spectacular feature, shooting up from 89¾ to 113½, and closing at 100. American Superpower issues were under pressure all week.

Sikorsky, with a 7-point rise to 44½, was the feature of the strong aircraft group. Niles Bement Pond ran up 17 points to 232. In the automotive group, For dof Canada registered a 50-point gain at 681.

Mining stocks were unusually active. Phelps Dodge ranged from 306 to 346, but later reacted to 330. Consolidated Mines & Smelters soared 35 points to 485. Newmont advanced from 187½ to 196, and New Jersey Zinc from 302¼ to 309¾.

Activity in the chain stores centered in Isaac Silver, with a 10-point jump to above 85, and Metropolitan, which fluctuated between 76¾ and 89.

BUSINESS CONTINUES SATISFACTORY PACE

AUTO PLANTS SPEED UP

New York, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Credit stringency caused considerable concern over the future, but business continued to make satisfactory progress during the past week. What little change was apparent was generally for the better.

Heavy construction and engineering activity held up well, but building continued to sag, in contrast to the level of activity a year ago. This was largely attributed to the high money rates, although the trend of building is difficult to establish at this time of year.

Steel mills showed further acceleration of production, operations averaging from 85 to 95 per cent of capacity, and promising to establish a new record in February output. Prices showed some irregularity, but were inclined to firmness. The trade, however, was disposed to adopt a conservative outlook, feeling that continued high money rates may have a depressing effect upon the industry.

The automobile industry continued its steady speeding up of production, which is now running about 50 per cent ahead of this time last year. Manufacturers of farm implements, electrical equipment and radios and machinery still maintained operations near capacity. The nonferrous metals encountered good demand, lead prices moving up $2 a ton, zinc prices firming up and copper moving in greater volume, throwing off the slump that followed the last marking up of red metal prices.

Conditions in the petroleum industry remained unsettled, with a gasoline price-cutting war on the Pacific Coast and the entrance of new concerns into the Eastern markets adding to the difficulties. Crude petroleum, however, showed a decline for the first time this year. The American Petroleum Institute appointed a committee of 80 leading oil executives to study the production problem. Prairie Oil & Gas Co. and the Barnsdall Corporation voluntarily ordered shut-downs of their producing wells on Sundays as a step toward curbing output.

The textile industry showed some improvement, with the spring movement of dry goods getting under way. Cotton and woolen mills were operating at higher rates, although profit margins were still reported as discouragingly narrow.

It was reported that raw silk consumption in January reached the highest level on record. Rayon mills continued operations at capacity and prices were marked up.

The week's insolvency record was somewhat better than for the corresponding five-day week a year ago, R. G. Dun & Co. reporting 411 defaults, in contrast with 483.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—The protracted Washington's birthday holiday reduced the volume of new financing in the past week. The bond offerings with a total of $71,429,000, exceeded the stock issues, which amounted to $36,184,000. Stock offerings in the preceding week totaled $169,748,000, compared to $73,874,000 for bonds.

Profit taking on a very active market was followed on the New York Rubber Exchange last week by good support against a fairly stiff pressure, with the result that the reaction was only slight. Prices finished at about the same level as on February 15.

General Motors Corporation sales to overseas dealers in 1928 increased to 282,187 from 193,830 cars in 1927. Sales in the fourth quarter of 1928 amounted to 71,867 cars, compared to 52,493 cars in the corresponding 1927 period.

Net income of the Melville Shoe Corporation of New York increased last year to $1,657,139 from $1,231,161 in 1927. The company opened 89 new stores, bringing the chain to 410 stores.

Western Auto Supply Co., of Kansas City, reports net profit of $1,002,607 in 1928, compared to $931,577 in 1927. The chain now totals 54, with the addition of 23 new units in 1928.

Southland Royalty Co., an oil royalty concern, is marketing 225,000 shares of its no-par capital stock at $24 a share.

Lane Drug Stores, Inc., of Atlanta, are planning to open additional stores in Georgia, Florida, North Carolina and Tennessee to bring the chain up to 225 stores.

Stockholders of Celotex Co. of record March 6 are being offered rights to subscribe to additional common stock at $65 a share in ratio of one new share for every seven shares held.

Mr. Arde Bulova, Vice President of the Company, has summarized from his letter to us as follows:

"Bulova Watch Company, Inc., together with its subsidiaries, all wholly owned, is one of the world's largest manufacturers of strap and wrist watches with jeweled movements. Bulova pocket watches, which have been recently introduced, and the newly designed line of desk and boudoir clocks, have met with favorable reception in the trade.

The Company has financed its growth mainly through reinvestment of earnings, and with the additional working capital from this financing will be able to take greater advantage of developments in its business. The active management will continue in the hands of the Bulova family and associates, who will own over 70% of the Common Stock presently to be outstanding.

Volume production and the piece-work basis of employment for an average of some 2,000 operatives in the plants, at New York and Providence in this country and at Bienne in Switzerland, reduce unit costs and ensure quality of product.

Bulova watches are sold only under the Company's own trade-names and distributed exclusively through the retail jewelry trade. More than 5,000 jewelers throughout the United States and Canada sell Bulova products and carry parts for prompt repair service. Distributors' retail merchandising is aided by a trained sales organization and aggressive national advertising of products standard in quality over a wide range of prices. Sales have increased continuously each year since 1916 and to date this year are over 30% larger than for the same period in 1928.

The Preferred Stock will be issued to increase net working capital and for other corporate purposes. The consolidated balance sheet as at December 31, 1928, giving effect to this financing, shows net current assets of $4,983,505 with a current ratio of better than 5 to 1 and net tangible assets exceeding $100 per share of Preferred Stock presently to be outstanding.

Consolidated net earnings for the three years ended December 31, 1928, plus adjustments in the average annual amount of $57,009, of which $19,000 are non-recurring expenses and the balance represents interest to be eliminated by this financing, officers' salaries in excess of contracts for 1929 and adjustment of Federal income taxes to the present rate of 12%, as certified by Messrs. Haskins & Sells, have been as follows:

Such net earnings for 1928, applied to the capitalization presently to be outstanding, exceed 6.8 times annual Preferred dividend and the balance is $3.73 per share of Common Stock."

We offer these Preferred Shares, when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to approval of Counsel, Messrs. Kellogg, Emery & Inness-Brown for the Bankers and Messrs. Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood for the Company. It is expected that delivery in the form of temporary certificates will be made about March 5, 1929.

Price per Share $50 and accrued dividend

We also offer, subject to allotment and the above conditions, 75,000 Common Shares purchased from individuals.

Common Stock: $29 per Share

Fifteen Years of Success

The reliability of Thomas' treatment is indicated by its fifteen years of success. However, it embodies all modern therapeutic agents of known value in treating hair and scalp disorders. Last year approximately 16,000 men and women throughout the country decided to retain or regain their hair by this proved method.

Examination Without Charge

At any of the Thomas' offices the trichologist in charge will gladly examine your hair and scalp without charge and frankly tell you what Thomas' treatment can do in your particular case.

STRIBLING, RUMORED NOT FIT, COMPLETES TRAINING

Old Line Five In Atlanta Tourney

Maryland U. to Play Mississippi, Defending Champs.

Southern Conference Event Will Open on Friday.

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Sixteen select basket ball teams of the Southern Conference will meet in the eighth annual championship tournament at Atlanta, opening Friday, with a half dozen or more rating an even chance for the title.

Meeting here today, the conference basket ball committee paired the teams, with only University of Virginia, Sewanee, University of Florida, Virginia, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Vanderbilt, Virginia Military Institute and the University of South Carolina missing from the competitive list.

University of Mississippi, the defending champions, will be called upon to defend its crown in the first game of the meet, the Oxford aggregation being pitted against the University of Maryland.

Opening day pairings and time of games: 1 p. m., Mississippi University vs. Maryland; 2 p. m., Kentucky vs. Tulane; 3 p. m., Washington and Lee vs. Louisiana State; 4 p. m., North Carolina State vs. Tennessee; 5 p. m., Alabama vs. Duke; 7 p. m., Georgia vs. Auburn; 8 p. m., University of North Carolina vs. Mississippi A. and M.; 9 p. m., Georgia Tech vs. Clemson.

Washington and Lee, Louisiana State, Mississippi University, Maryland, North Carolina State, Tennessee, Clemson and Georgia Tech comprise the first bracket.

Duke Is Included in Second Bracket for Tournament.

Georgia, Auburn, Kentucky, Tulane, Alabama, Duke, North Carolina and Mississippi A. and M. are the second bracket eight.

In the first bracket, the winner of the Washington and Lee-Louisiana State game will meet the Maryland-Mississippi contest survivor in the second round, while the winenr of the North Carolina State-Tennessee game will play the Clemson-Georgia Tech winner.

The two teams triumphing in that brush will play for the right to participate in the finals.

In the second or lower bracket, the winner of the Auburn-Georgia game will meet the winner of the Kentucky-Tulane skirmish, while the survivor in the Duke-Alabama will play the winner of the North Carolina-Mississippi A and M. contest. The two teams surviving the second round then play for the other finalist privileges.

Maryland U. Surprised At Tournament Selection

Their selection to compete in the Southern Conference championship tournament starting Friday comes as a pleasant surprise to the Maryland University players. Although they had posted entrance fees, they did not feel sure that their record for this season would earn them a place in the titular event.

It is expected that Coach Burton Shipley will take eight or nine players to the tourney. Those certain to go are Evans, Radice and Cohan, forwards; Hetzel and Madigan, centers, and Dean and Heagy, guards. Allen, center, and Fitzer and McGann, guards, will be considered before final choice is made.

Garden Chiefs Agreed To Broadcast Fight

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 24 (U.P.). The Sharkey-Stribling fight is to be broadcast after all.

Roy W. Howard, chairman of the board of directors of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, who holds an exclusive contract for the broadcasting of all fights held under the auspices of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, conferred with W. F. Carey and Jack Dempsey today and decided that the bout next Wednesday night should go on the air over the National Broadcasting Chain.

Previous to his conference, the promoters of the Sharkey-Stribling go had determined that there should be no broadcasting and the Scripps-Howard newspapers had waived their rights in the matter.

Demand from all parts of the United States that the fight be broadcast led to the decision to put it on the air, starting at approximately 9:45 p. m., Eastern standard time. Definite decision as to the time of the broadcast and the various radio hook-ups will be made tomorrow.

Almost the Naked Truth

—By JAMES S. COLLINS—

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Everything went black before Paavo Nurmi as he was about to start for Madison Square Garden Saturday night to keep an engagement with the A. A. U. to compete in the national indoor championships and he knew no more until two men, one tall and thin and the other short and stout, who kidnaped him just as he was entering the Garden, removed his gag and blindfold and released him just in time for him to learn that he had been deprived of an unexpected opportunity to compete against Eino Purje in the 2-mile steeplechase or against Edvin Wide in the 2-mile flat race.

Something like that must be the explanation of the nonappearance of the flying Finn for his famous feet are stuck fast in the tanglefoot of an indefinite suspension by the A. A. U. Nobody, including his close friend and adviser, Hugo Quist, and even the operatives of a film news reel organization that claims it sees all and knows all, had the remotest idea where Paavo was when a gardenful of spectators had gathered in the expectation of seeing him perform Saturday evening. Mr. Quist had had no word from Nurmi, but confided to the occupants of the press box that Paavo had a cold that not only kept him out of the meet, but prevented him from communicating with the A. A. U. officials. With their customary charming tact the inhabitants of the press box agreed with Mr. Quist, localizing the cold in Mr. Nurmi's feet.

Nurmi Has Distaste for Competing Against Fellow Scandinavians.

Purje, like Wide, had let it be understood that he would run only in the 2-mile flat race. Nurmi, who seems to have a distaste for the competitive company of his countryman and the Swedish schoolmaster, decided to run only in the steeplechase. At the last minute Purje announced that he would try conclusions with Nurmi in the steeplechase. Then, and not until then, did Nurmi develop a cold, suffer an attack of aphasia, get kidnaped or whatever it was that kept him from keeping his date. If he had run the

By FRANK H. YOUNG.
(Staff Correspondent of The Post.)

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 24.—Instead of being increased in numbers, as was expected, the Washington contingent of Nationals headed for the Tampa training camp actually shrank in size, for Pitcher Irving (Bump) Hadley and Assistant Trainer F. Reilly Baxter went on a sightseeing tour at Jacksonville this morning and were left. They sneaked into the camp nearly six hours later than the party with which they left the Capital.

Catcher Cliff Bolton and Pitcher Jim Weaver arrived early this evening and Pitcher Guy Cantrell and Catcher Al Bove are expected in on late trains tonight. Pitcher McCullough wired from his home at Newcastle, Pa., that he is ill and hopes to report Wednesday.

Ruel and Milan Will Be Late In Reporting at Camp.

Catcher Harold (Muddy) Ruel and Coach Clyde Milan, originally slated to show up in time to take the initial 1929 workout tomorrow, will be late in reporting. Ruel wired that he would not arrive here until Tuesday or Wednesday, while Milan has been given permission to delay reporting until next Sunday.

As players always complain of long train rides, Johnson ordered his men to bed early tonight so that they will be ready to get down to work tomorrow. Groundkeeper Haesman has accomplished wonders with the Plant Field diamond and declares that he will have it ready for use Tuesday. If true, Haesman will have accomplished a miracle for, in the writer's opinion, it is at least two weeks away from completion.

Running Track in Condition; Not Good News to Players.

The diamond will not be needed for several days, however, so Manager Johnson is doing no worrying. His first inquiry was: "How's the running track?" and it brought tears to the eyes of the young athletes, who like to do everything else but footwork during the conditioning period. And the answer did not make them feel and better, either, for Haesman replied that, while the track is cleared of all obstruction and ready for use, it is as hard as concrete as result of the auto races held on it during the recent South Florida Fair.

Rialto All-Stars Defeat Hebrew Scholastics, 39-26

In a spirited contest at the Jewish Community Center Gym yesterday, the Rialto All-Stars took the Hebrew Scholastics in tow for the second time this season, 39 to 26. A first half attack led by Phil Sykes and Abe Povich gave the Rialtos a 15 to 7 advantage at intermission, while a whirlwind second-half attack led by Bennie Mensh and Mitchell Sklar, with five and three goals, respectively, put the game on ice. Lester Singman, former Business High star, played a heroic role for the Scholastics, season, 39 to 26. A first-half attack led the running late in the second half. The floor game of Silverman and Stein also featured.

The Rialtos desire games for Tuesday and Friday of this week with teams having games, and a return engagement with the Trinity M. E. Five is especially sought. For games call Manager Bennie Mensh at Columbia 3800, between 6 and 7 p. m.

POST'S ALL-COLLEGE BASKET BALL TEAM

D. C. COLLEGES CLOSE COURT SEASON

5 Contests Here This Week; Cosgrove Leads Scorers.

THE college basket ball season comes to an end locally with six games this week, excluding Maryland's contest with Mississippi in the Southern Conference tournament at Atlanta

Catholic University will engage in three of the regularly scheduled games. The Cardinals will figure in the piece de resistance of the program, with George Washington acting as host, tomorrow night in a return game on the Colonials' floor, 2010 H street northwest. G. W. seeks to avenge a defeat at the Cardinals' hands last week.

American will entertain Catholic on Friday night on the Massachusetts avenue court, this also being a return clash, with the home team thirsting for revenge. C. U. broke its long losing streak at American's expense early in the season.

St. Johns of Annapolis will invade the American Gymnasium tonight in the opener of the week's card. On Wednesday night the Saints will return to play Georgetown on the same floor, while Catholic receives Blue Ridge College at Brookland. Gallaudet will wind up its schedule on Friday night, meeting Shepherd College at Shepherdstown, W. Va.

Cosgrove Seems Certain to Win Point-Scoring Honors.

With one more game to play, Del Cosgrove, of Gallaudet, seems certain to finish first in the individual scoring race among District college players. His total to date is 172 for fourteen contests and he leads his nearest competitor by 19 points.

Forrest Burgess, of American University, advanced from third to the

ONCE more comes the season for picking, as a quaint old custom, a mythical combination of athletes who excel in a particular branch of sport. In District college basket ball ranks, The Post has assembled for 1929 one of those teams that never plays.

No banquets, no medals, no parades for the boys—just photographs, paper and 6½-point type for an indelible record of The Post's belief that they are the best, the belief being based on observation of their performances for the past eight weeks.

Before introducing them individually, we want to say that there have been few, if any, Post all-college basket ball selections in the past that were greater either defensively or offensively than the present; also, that none ever before assembled could equal these five players in basket ball brains, an essential quality in any truly outstanding exponent of the court game.

Cosgrove, Burgess, One-Two In High Score Rankings.

In the forward positions are Delmar Cosgrove, of Gallaudet College, and Forrest Burgess, of American University. A better reason for their selection could not be found than that they are the higest and second highest point scorers, respectively, among local college players.

Scoring ability alone does not represent their qualifications, however. Both are exceptionally speedy, smart, and able to maintain their fastest pace throughout 40 minutes of a game. Moreover, both pass accurately, guard effectively and work in harmony with their teammates. Neither hesitates to sacrifice personal scoring opportunities to chuck the ball to a teammate in a better position to score.

It is doubtful if there ever was a more deadly shot in District college court history than Cosgrove or Burgess within the 15-foot zone. Inside of that territory the ability of the Silent ace and the sensational freshman star of the Eagles is almost uncanny.

Handicaps Mean Nothing To Burgess; Stars Tho Freshman.

The tougher the competition, the closer the guarding of opponents and the more difficult their positions are, the better these two seem to like it. In other words, under pressure Cosgrove and Burgess are most likely to score.

Burgess deserves especial credit in his selection. He is only in his freshman year and does not have the weight and height of most of his varsity opponents. He has completely offset what seemed to be handicaps by using to good advantage the all-around knowledge he gained as a schoolboy and sandlot player.

The choice for center—Don Dutton of Georgetown—has no near rival. That is not because the other tap-off men hereabouts are not capable, but simply because Dutton happens to be unusually superior for a college basketer.

The fact that he has played at forward as much as at center this season does not bar this Hilltop flash from being crowned as the best pivot man. He is no giant, yet he manages to get his share of the taps with the tallest, as he has a remarkable spring in his legs.

McGraw's Arrival Awaited; News From Training Camps

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 24 (A.P.).—The New York Giants, in training here, today were looking forward with much interest to the arrival of Manager John J. McGraw following the report that the club had been offered $4,000,000 for its holdings by the Madison Square Garden Corporation. McGraw was expected to arrive the first part of the week.

McGraw, with Charles A. Stoneham and Francis X. McQuade, is one of the principal Giant stockholders.

Among the players who arrive at the week-end to complete the training list are infielders Andy Cohen, Andry Reese, Travis Jackson, Bill Terry, Freddy Lindstrom, C. R. Crawford and Herbert Thomas; Outfielders Fred Leach, Melvin Ott, Jimmy Welch, Tonny Kaufman and Charles Fullis.

The players rested today. Manager Ray Schalk reported all hands in tiptop condition, except Pitcher Joe Genewich, who bumped his knee in a collision with Jack Cummings at first base in Saturday's game. He was not seriously injured, Schalk stated, and would be back in the workout Monday. Cummings, who was slightly injured Friday when one of his fingers was slightly spiked, shows no signs of having met with an accident.

Schang Is Holdout as Browns Entrain for Training Camp.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Wallie Schang, veteran catcher, was a holdout as the St. Louis Browns' early squad left for spring training at West Palm Beach, Fla., tonight. Business Manager Bill Friel had expected Schang to put in an appearance at the station but the 38-year-old backstop wasn't aboard and Friel said he was unsigned.

Schang was said to be the only Brown holdout, and a squad of 25 men are expected to report to Manager Dan Howley at West Palm Beach Tuesday morning, including all battery men. Howley has been in Florida all winter. The Browns expect to start back March 31.

Southworth Leads Cardinal Squad South Today.

St. Louis, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—The Cardinals, under Billy Southworth, the fifth manager in as many seasons, send their first squad away tomorrow night for Avon Park, Fla., with the return journey starting March 25. The Cardinals' advance squad from St. Louis includes Southworth, his two coaches, "Greasy" Neale and "Gabby" Street, and Pitchers Alexander and Mitchell. A hurler and catcher belonging to farms of the Red Birds will also go with them.

Bainbridge, Ga., Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Four generations of the Stribling family will be in Miami Beach and at least three of them at the fight when W. L. "Young" Stribling meets Jack Sharkey Wednesday night, it became known when "Grandpa" Stribling announced his intention of being at the ringside.

The fighter's 63-year-old grandfather will leave for Miami by automobile tomorrow, he announced.

"Pa" and "Ma" Stribling and "Baby" Stribling will also be on hand when the Macon fighter mixes it ith Sharkey, while "Young" Strib's 2-year-old son will be in town, if not actually at the fight.

Both Fighters End Boxing Work Outs

By EDWARD J. NEIL.
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 24 (A. P.).—Despite somewhat disturbing reports circulated as to his physical condition, Young Stribling, the Georgia slasher, hung up his boxing gloves tonight after a final workout and settled down to comparative rest for his ten-round struggle with Jack Sharkey in Flamingo Park next Wednesday night.

Stribling wound up his ring work under watchful eyes today with three rounds of boxing devoted almost entirely to seeking out any weak spots that may be left in his armor. The lean Macon youth deliberately had his hands high to let Martin Burke pound his body, give Paul Cavalier opportunities to work on his ribs or let Johnny Bell, a third sparring mate, take a few pot shots at his chin.

Although Stribling, to critical eyes, seemed to pass the test with a perfect average, persistent rumors about the temporary fight metropolis were circulated to the effect that "W. L." has been under the secret care of a physician for a body ailment. During the workout, it also developed, the Southerner wore a special glove on his right hand and did little punching from that side.

Dempsey and "Pa" Stribling Scoff At Persistent Rumors.

Both Jack Dempsey and "Pa" Stribling scoffed at the reports, which went so far as to suggest significance in the fact that Paulino Uzcudun, the Spanish Basque will be on the ground for possible emergency use. Uzcudun, it was recalled, was named first alternate by Tex Rickard when the late promoter made original arrangements for the match, to safeguard against any accident keeping either opponent out of the ring. Uzcudun is expected here tomorrow. The Spaniard is in condition to fight, but indications tonight are that his part in the proceedings will take palce in a ringside seat and not inside the ropes.

Sharkey, on the other hand, still is working on the basis that practice makes perfect—and the more practice the more perfect. The Boston sailor man will work with his sparring partners for the last time Monday, easing off with two or three rounds of boxing. The final drill is due for Tuesday, when Sharkey plans limbering-up exercises and a long walk. There will be no work of any kind for either on the day of the battle.

Sharkey, in Strenuous Workout, Shows Good Form.

Sharkey went to his work with a vim and zest that has developed only in the past few days Boston Jackie fought two stiff rounds with Johnny Grosso, who slugged in free-style fashion and gave Sharkey a splendid opportunity to speed up his left hand. Against Paul Hoffman, the silent sailor worked a sharp right upper cut to the head. Sharkey seemed strong and in splendid condition. He scaled 190½ pounds after the drill, close to his best fighting "poundage," while Stribling weighed about 183.

The box office and social sides of the battle came into fresh prominence today. William F. Carey, who is helping Jack Dempsey stage the fray, announced $283,909 is in the fight treasury, with $25,000 worth of tickets out on consignment. Expenses of staging the fight he estimated at $256,000, assuring the Madison Square Garden Corporation a neat profit, even without the late sales. Carey believes a gate of $500,000 will be a certainty.

FRANK SHORE BEATEN BY CONSIDINE

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 24.—Robert Considine, defending champion, came through two rounds safely in the Maryland State indoor tennis championship tourney today at the Fifth Regiment Armory, but the Washingtonian had a close call in each clash.

Meeting Frank Shore, a District challenger, in the second round, Considine was faced with a foeman who started off with a rush and by superior all-round play had the champion trailing, 6—3, at the close of the first set.

This setback aroused Considine to such an extent that he quickly subdued his home town opponent in the next two sets, 6—1, 6—0.

In the third round match Considine was again forced to three sets when Sam Cohn, West Virginia State champion, played unusually good tennis, so good that the title holder was compelled to play everything he knew in order to keep from being eliminated.

Considine Wins First Set After Being Carried to 14 Games.

Considine won the first set but only after Cohn had carried him along to fourteen games, 8—6, and the latter, who was playing a flashy game, then came through to down the title holder, 6—4, in the second set and even the match. However, Cohn had called upon a lot of reserve energy in winning this set and Considine managed to defeat him in the third, 6—4.

Edward Lefleur, seeded No. 8, was eliminated from the singles competition by Dooley Mitchell, the brilliant Washington net star and Hotchkiss Cup ace, after the latter had been forced to take a drubbing in the first set, 4—6. A total of 30 games were required to finish this argument, Lefleur fighting stubbornly before going down by scores of 6—2, 7—5.

Play will be resumed next Saturday, according to the officials in charge.

SINGLES.

DOUBLES.

First round—Rudy and Jacobsen defeated Kairys and Fribush, 6—4, 6—2; Lefleur and Rintoul defeated Taylor and Robinson, 3—6, 6—2, 6—2.

CONSOLATIONS.

Shepherd defeated Cohen, 7—5, 6—0; Robinson defeated Dunn, 6—1, 6—3; Yeomans defeated Buchannon, 6—1, 3—6, 6—1; W. Taylor defeated Rintoul, 3—6, 6—1, 6—2; Shore defeated Reid, 6—2, 6—2.

Canzoneri Holds Bout Tomorrow Important

Chicago, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Tony Canzoneri, the punching tornado from New York, will attempt to further establish himself as a leading contender for Tod Morgan's junior lightweight crown Tuesday night when he mixes with Ignacio Fernandez, the Filipino, in a ten-round battle.

The bout is the outstanding attraction of Chicago's ring attractions this week. Canzoneri, who knocked out Armando Santiago, of Cuba, and Joey Singer, of Milwaukee, in his last two starts here, is a heavy favorite.

Shelton, of Yale, Wins Squash Rackets Title

New York, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Huntington D. Shelton, of New York, former Yale star, dethroned Clarence C. Pell, the defending title holder, in the final round of the national amateur racquet championship at the Racquet and Tennis Club here today. The scores were 15-11, 9-15, 15-6, 7-15, 16-15.

Miss Hicks Competes For Third Title Today

On her eighteenth birthday, Miss Hicks won the women's championship at Miami. Ten days later she conquered Miss Virginia Van Wie to claim the Florida women's crown at Palm Beach.

She will have another chance in Florida when she tees off in the annual Florida east coast women's championship at St. Augustine March 5. Should Miss Hicks win both the South Atlantic and the Florida east coast titles, she will accomplish what no other woman golfer has ever done—make a clean sweep of the winter field.

Gus Sonnenberg Risks Mat Crown Tonight

Chicago, Feb. 24 (A.P.).—Dynamite Gus" Sonnenberg will risk his heavyweight wrestling crown at the Chicago Coliseum tomorrow night when he tackles Stanislaus Stasiak, giant Polish challenger.

With his famous hold, the "flying tackle," Sonnenberg is not expected to have much difficulty in disposing of Stasiak. The challenger has won several victories of importance, but all of them have been against opponents who were slower than the champion.

SOUTH ATLANTIC TOURNEY ENTRIES CLOSE FRIDAY

Event Draws All Leading Quintets

D. C. and S. Atlantic Titles at Stake in Tournament.

WASHINGTON basket ball teams have less than five days in which to enter the South Atlantic championship tournament, the District games of which will be staged under the auspices of The Washington Post, starting March 11. At midnight Friday night the lists will be closed and the drawings will be made in the seven classes, which include 100, 115, 130 and 145 pounds unlimited divisions for men and boys and junior and unlimited sections for women and girls.

Winners of the Washington groups will be the recognized District champions of their divisions and will compete against Baltimore winners for the South Atlantic A. A. U. championships and the individual gold medals, emblematic of the titles.

There is every indication that the tournament this season will surpass in the number of entries, that of last year, when Washington set a national A. A. U. basket ball tournament record with 71 teams in competition.

In the two years that The Post has staged the Washington games interest in the South Atlantic tournament, confined before to a few scattered teams which had to travel to Baltimore for all games, has served to make the event the largest of the basket ball season here. Last year the Arcadia court was a bedlam of action from the start to the finish of the tournament and the games, on several occasions, drew capacity crowds.

Although the seating capacity of the George Washington Gymnasium, where the tournament games will be played this year, is not as great as at the Arcadia, which is now devoted to bowling, the playing floor is regulation in every respect. The games will be played under as strict supervision and under as ideal conditions as last year.

The officiating will again be in charge of Orrel Mitchell, Joe Mitchell and Tommy Ford, the three District Approved Board referees who handled all of the Washington games last year so efficiently.

Contests to Be Officiated by Approved Board Referees.

These officials, former independent court stars, have been refereeing independent games during the season and are in top shape for the important tournament games.

Girls' teams are expected to provide some of the features of the tournament this year. Seldom have Washington sextets figured prominently in the South Atlantic championship. This year the clubs are showing keen interest and some lively contests are anticipated. The best girls' officials obtainable will handle their games, which will also be played at the George Washington Gymnasium.

For the benefit of teams who have not yet obtained their entry blanks, tournament officials wish to bring out that there is no mystery connected with entering the tournament. All necessary blanks are obtainable at The Washington Post sports department, where members of the South Atlantic tournament committee will explain all details and aid managers and players in filling out the blanks.

If your team desires information relative to the tournament either visit The Post sports department between 3 p. m. and midnight, or telephone Main 4205.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY BERT E. COLLYER

SENATOR VASQUEZ BELLO. Try this one on your ukulele sister. As for the boys who desire to get down a little wager just gargle it as you would a bunch of spaghetti. Is in the fourth spasm down Miami way and all the boys from Cuba and Mexico will bombard the orallizers. Has plenty of "foot" and will shake a wicked set of heels Do you want me to put up for both of us?

JACK ADAMS will have a strong rider in the coop and should show to better advantage than in his first start. This is in the "baby" race and it is a most open affair. Much will depend upon racing luck

SPANISH PRINCESS will grab off brackets in the second unless ROYAL SWEEP comes to life. The latter is improving and is about due. ROYAL LOVE is a genuine sleeper in the third. WEBSTER will be backed but this makes no never mind.

For the fifth, dump it in on SIXTY. Will go to the front and stay there.

WATCH ON is in good form and seems like one of the "sure thing" variety down at New Orleans. Anything can happen in the Crescent City, however, so don't attempt to be a hog and grab it all off at one chew.

GOTHAM is in great form and should repeat in the event the track does not dry out too much.

Start the ball rolling with HADES, which carries the McLean colors. He is one hell of a "baby," so the clockers report.

EAGLES BEAT BROOKLYN CASEYS

Skinker Five Scores, 30-20; Goes Ahead at the Start.

BEATEN by the Cumberland Caseys on Saturday night, the Skinker Bros. Eagles made it up to themselves that they would not be downed by the Brooklyn Caseys yesterday. The latter club, rated as one of the strongest teams in the East and possessor of one of the smoothest working combinations in the game, fell victim to the contention by finishing on the short end of a 30 to 20 score in the Congress Heights Gymnasium.

The Eagles' big four—Sweeney, Faber, King and Bennie—once more distinguished themselves in collecting timely points for victory. Sweeney led, with three baskets and three foul tosses for 9 points, followed by Faber and Bennie, who scored three baskets and two free throws for 8 points apiece. King contributed two fielders for 4 points.

Eagles Gain Lead at Start; Have 16-6 Advantage at Half.

A forward by the name of Crane was the outstanding player for Brooklyn. This performer roamed the floor in excellent fashion and demonstrated to the entirety his value to his club. Crane counted four times from the floor and four times from the 15-foot mark

The Eagles, quite as has been their custom in many past games at the Anacostia floor, jumped into the lead at the outset and enjoyed a 16 to 6 advantage at the half. The Brooklyns spurted somewhat after the intermission and decreased the Eagles' lead to 19 to 16, but were unable to draw closer or go ahead.

During the last seven minutes of the game the Brooklyns called upon several substitutes to help them to grab the game out of the fire, but none responded enough to the call. Moran, inserted for Heney, registered two baskets but these did not aid to any great extent.

STEWART BROS. VICTORIOUS

The Stewart Bros. Five added another victim to its list yesterday afternoon by defeating the St. Martins, 29 to 23, in the Silver Spring Armory Gymnasium. The Stewarts engage the Curtin Wonders on Thursday at Central at 8 o'clock.

Hilltop and C. U. Ring Teams Face 3 Matches During Week

THIS week brings the grand finale on the local collegiate boxing stage.

Both Catholic University and Georgetown, who hold a corner on the mauling market among the local institutions, will send their gloved representatives into action, the Brooklanders being slated for two matches, one of which will be held here.

Catholic will engage Western Maryland at Brookland on Saturday night, but will taste competition before that, however, as it is due to swap rights and lefts with the mittmen of Bucknell at Lewisburg, Pa., on Wednesday.

Cards to Meet Collegiate Champs In Penn State's Team.

There should be plenty of reward in the way of spirited action for the fans who attend the curtain shows. As far as the local teams are concerned, there is certain to be much sizzling competition on view. Catholic is anxious to better the showing Georgetown made against Western Maryland, while the Hilltop team will be out in one last desperate effort to place a victory on its season's record.

No easy task confronts the Cardinals. Western Maryland will offer them enough tough opposition for one week, judging from past performances. Yet Coach Mitchell's boys must undergo two nights in the ring.

Penn State holds the intercollegiate boxing championship. That fact in itself seems sufficient proof that Georgetown will encounter trouble, too. The Lions boast of an undefeated boxer in Wolf, their 160-pounder, who is reported to have slipped the slumber punch to most of his foes during three years of collegiate competition.

Charley Fish, only Georgetown boxer who has not been defeated this winter, will be given the job of stopping Wolf. That is, providing Fish's ailing left hand, which was aggravated in his fight last Friday night, recovers to its normal state. A one-handed boxer in a college bout is doubly useless, for it takes two hands and constant projection of them to gain much favor from the judges in the three rounds to which college jousts are limited.

Gene Murphy, star quarter back of the Catholic University 1928 football team, may get into the ring against Western Maryland's middleweight—Ekaitis, most terrifying of the Green Terrors. Murphy fought two years ago, but so far this winter has abstained from athletics so that he could fully recover from an operation for abdominal trouble.

Recently the sturdy quarter back who rifled forward passes all over the Brookland gridiron with amazing accuracy last fall, reported to Coach Mitchell to resume boxing. He immediately showed promise of regaining his old ring prowess, and is being considered seriously for the middleweight job Saturday night.

Shake-Up of Georgetown Teams With Fish Idle Probable.

If Murphy does fight, Frank Fullam, sensational freshman, will move up to the light heavyweight class and Ed Campbell will be given a rest.

The Georgetown team again may be shaken up for the Penn State match. Should Fish idle, Brennan will get the call in his place. Fred Schaffley, heavyweight, whose hand also has been bothering him, may fight in the light heavyweight class, while McAllister, a newcomer, is a possible choice for the bantamweight bout in place of Davis.

Weldon Monson, former football celebrity, who was defeated in his debut last Friday, will do the honors again for Georgetown in the heavyweight division.

SCRIBES OPEN ELIMINATION ROUNDS

THE first round in the elimination tournament of the newspaper bowlers of the District will take place today when 54 duckpin artists take the drives in the championship flight while 81 are battling for consolation honors. Twenty-four of the championship performers go in the drives at 1 o'clock with the other 30 rolling at 8 o'clock. In the consolation event, 31 roll in the afternoon with 44 booked for the night squad.

Due to the large field and working connections it has been found necessary to complete the first round on Wednesday night, when 40 are scheduled to roll, 30 being in the championship flight.

McCarty and Cahoon Favorites In Championship Flight.

Dave McCarty, of the Star, and Bubbles Cahoon, of the Times, were the outstanding performers in the qualifying round and will be closely watched during the coming games. McCarty rolled 583 while Cahoon registered 580. Despite the good showing on the part of this pair there are some other good performers in the championship race and an upset may be anticipated at any time.

Of the consolation contenders, it is only logical that the high qualifying men be favored to cop the honors, but here, too, the slightest slip may eliminate the leaders in the qualification. A. C. Roderick and L. J. Fowler, of the Star, and Charles E. Feller, of the Post, tied for top honors in this group with 483 each.

Renroc Scholastics Beat Frenchs, 25 to 22

The Renroc Scholastics and French A. C. tossers engaged in a thriller yesterday in the Congress Heights Gymnasium, preliminary to the Eagle-Brooklyn game. The Renrocs won, 25 to 22, after a five-minute extra period was played.

The Renrocs were ahead, 10 to 6, at the half, but did not keep that lead long, as the Frenchs came back with an attack which put them in the game to the regulation finish. The score was tied, 20 to 20, when Referee Ryan ended regular play and terminated, 25 to 22, in favor of the Renrocs after the five-minute extra session.

Depro's three foul tosses and Wiltshire's basket was what proved the margin of victory for the "schoolboys," as a basket by Gubisch gave the Frenchs a momentary lead, 22 to 20.

Company F Regulars Win Over Express Five, 38-22

Company F Regulars took the measure of the American Railway Express Tossers yesterday afternoon, 38 to 22, in the Hyattsville Armory. Vincent, with 13 points, and Wright with 11, starred for the winners.

In a preliminary, the Frenchy Arcadian 115-Pound Team nosed out the Frenchy Arcadian 100-Pound Five, 24 to 23, in a game that was decided by the former in the last ten seconds of play. A basket by Holland is what won for the 115-Pound Frenchy Arcadian.

STANTONS BEAT HAWKS.

Stantons pulled the unexpected in defeating the strong Brentwood Hawks yesterday evening, 32 to 29, at the Silver Spring Armory. The Hawks journeyed down from Laurel to play the game, having lost to the Dixie Pigs earlier in the afternoon in a Prince Georges County title game.

Fading Season Finds Most of D. C. Group in Action.

NINE games, with Wednesday the busiest day, are on the local scholastic basket ball program for this week. One game will begin the action today, followed by two on Tuesday, three on Wednesday, and one each on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Where most of the teams have either finished their court seasons or are resting up for the coming tournaments, the sparse program this week can practically be laid to the fading of the basket ball campaign.

Today's game will have Hyattsville High and Tech engaging in the Tech Gymnasium at 3 o'clock. One of tomorrow's clashes will have Western entertaining Gonzaga on the Western floor, while the other tilt will have Central at Philadelphia against the Penn Freshmen.

Strayers and St. John's Meet In Wednesday Game.

Strayers and St. John's will mix it up in one of the three encounters on Wednesday. The St. John's Gymnasium will be the scene of action. Central will journey to Alexandria to play the Episcopal High School Five, while Hyattsville High will entertain the Catonsville High Quintet at Hyattsville.

Georgetown Preps will be hosts to Loyola at Garrett Park in the lone Thursday clash, while Gonzaga will be the Garrett Parker's opponents on Friday. Central will go to Princeton, N. J., to play the Princeton Freshmen on Saturday, closing the week.

60 REPORT TO CLUB.

Let major league clubs cut down their rosters as they please, not all the minors believe in such economy. For instance, it is announced that the Shreveport club, of the Texas League, has ordered no less than 60 athletes to report for spring training. Art Phelan is managing that club.

GERBER IN SHAPE.

The veteran Walter Gerber, sending in his contract to the Boston Red Sox, wrote that his health has improved and he feels young enough to give battle to any other candidate for his job playing short for the Carrigan crew.

runner-up position, passing Freddy Mesmer, of Georgetown, during the week past. His collection now reads 153. The Georgetown captain fell back to fourth place as his teammate, Don Dutton, advanced to third. Dutton's total is 142, while the Hoya captain has compiled two less.

Armies of Blackbirds Invade New Jersey

Cape May, N. J., Feb. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.). An invasion of blackbirds into the villages and farms of Cold Spring and Fishing Creek, has been caused by the heavy snow which drove them from their winter habitat along the wooded shores of Delaware Bay.

In a flock which covered almost every inch of ground upon a two-acre field near here today, several white blackbirds were seen.

What Today Means to You

FEBRUARY 25

PISCES.

IF February 25 is your birthday, the most propitious hours for you today are from 10 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., from 3:30 p. m. to 5 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10:30 p. m.; the danger periods are from noon to 1:30 p. m., and from 6 p. m. to 7:30 p. m.

A feeling of dissatisfaction with today and its events may occur, but if you remember that: you will be able to find many blessings amongst the ordinary happenings of the day.

"All common things, each day's events,
Our pleasures and our discontents,
Are rounds by which we may ascend."

The child born today will have an eager mind and an insatiable curiosity. Parents should have infinite patience with such a mind; its childhood groping for wisdom and knowledge may be the budding indication of genius.

You have characteristics which are impregnable to the assaults of misfortunes or handicaps, a strong character, a strong will and well directed energy. It is said that in the competition of life, a man's claims are adjudicated upon the basis of what he actually is. It is your will power which keeps you hammering away at a stubborn problem or a task which others would give up as "impossible." It is your will which makes you rebegin after every rebuff until you reach the goal.

You have a clear perception of what you think are the worth-while things in life, and go after them with a winning spirit. The only genius you have is one for hard work, for long continued exertion. You do not have sudden burst of energy with alternations of inactivity. Yours is a patient and persistent labor.

Your work is marked with honesty and competency. Your patience is enduring, your faith is unshakable. In your cheerfulness you live constantly in a mood of receptivity. You are a creature of "cheerful yesterdays" and "confident tomorrows."

Charles C. Pinckney, soldier and statesman.
Benjamin Tallmadge, soldier.
John P. St. John, governor of Kansas.
William L. Lee, jurist.

Winsted Dogs Attack, Slay Deer on a Lawn

Winsted, Conn., Feb. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.). Dogs attacked and killed a deer on the lawn of Mrs. Jeannette Cady's home on Boyd street yesterday. The barking of the dogs was heard at 2 o'clock by residents of the vicinity and the deer's carcass, partly eaten and laying in the snow, was discovered after daybreak. The dogs had disappeared.

Radio Board Bill to Pass Senate Soon

This will be a critical week so far as radio control is concerned. As a precaution against further filibustering against the Senate bill extending the active administrative life of the Radio Commission for another year, Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, is carrying in his hip pocket a document bearing the signatures of sixteen senators requesting cloture. This is believed to insure passage of the bill.

If it is passed the Senate very likely will favor the House amendment that the commissioners only be appointed for a year, instead of a longer term, designated by the President. If this amendment is included it will automatically carry with it a favorable recommendation from the Senate interstate commerce committee for the President's appointees to commission vacancies, Arthur Batcheller, radio supervisor of New York, and Prof. C. M. Jansky, jr., of the University of Minnesota.

If the bill should fail, the matter of active radio control would revert to the Commerce Department and the commission would become an appellate body. With no appropriations provided and coming in the eleventh hour, that would result in confusion. Also it is said that Batcheller and Jansky would refuse recess appointments if not confirmed. President-elect Hoover is understood to favor a continuation of the commission actively for another year, at least, and does not want the burden to fall suddenly upon the Commerce Department.

In the meantime Commissioner O. H. Caldwell, having completed his duties, has returned to New York, where today he will assume editorial direction of Radio Retailing and Electrical Merchandising, published by the McGraw-Hill Co., with which he was associated for twenty years before coming to Washington.

Although virtually drafted to serve, Mr. Caldwell, the only man on the commission with technical knowledge, has never believed in commission control. He was of the opinion that radio was best administered as a departmental function in the hands of Mr. Hoover as Secretary of Commerce.

Capt. R. H. Marriott, assistant chief engineer of the Radio Commission, is to handle the work in the Eastern zone until Mr. Batcheller, or whoever is to succeed Mr. Caldwell, arrives. Another pinch hitter, Capt. Guy Hill, U. S. A., technical adviser, is temporarily acting as commissioner until a successor to Mr. Pickard takes office.

The meeting of the Radio Manufacturers Association's board of directors at the Homestead, Hot Springs, Va., on March 7, is developing into a radio industry gathering. In addition to the radio manufactureres' representatives, officers and directors of other trade associations will attend the Hot Springs meeting for a general discussion of industrial problems. The presidents and leaders of the National Association of Broadcasters and the Federated Radio Trade Association, the national organization of radio jobbers and dealers, have been invited to join the manufacturers' directors at the meeting in Hot Springs, which follows the inauguration of the new Hoover administration and precedes the extra session of Congress, from which important radio legislation is expected.

Tests are being conducted by the Washington division engineers of the National Broadcasting Co. with Army airplanes and dirigibles, which will be continued until March 1 and if practicable announcers will be sent aloft to give word-pictures of the ceremonies and the inaugural parade from the air on March 4.

Army engineers at Langley Field, Va., have installed broadcasting equipment aboard a type LD Keystone bombing plane and on a type C5 dirigible, a 200-foot lighter-than-air craft. Announcers at microphones in the aircraft described what they see below and their words are sent from the plane to a special receiver in the studios in Washington, and there amplified for broadcasting through a network of stations.

In order to eliminate the noise of the airship motors, always predominant in previous broadcasts of this kind, announcers will be equipped with specially designed miscrophones which it is hoped will exclude all sounds other than the words of the speaker. Transmitting antennas that trail out behind the aircraft will be used.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

DIFFICULTIES.

The sweetest of memories men recall
Are born of the dangers they've met and come through.

Joy is made up of dangers and doubts and of fears.
Of battles with failure in times of distress;
For out of the hardships endured through the years
The stout heart at last reaps the fruits of success.

If the race is worth running it's worth all its pain,
And to come to the goal which seemed hopelessly lost

Jari INTERPRETS the MODE

New York, Feb. 24.

ME. JENNY always captures the spirit of youth in her creations, not only in line, silhouette, materials and color, but in a certain vivacious originality of detail.

Dipping into our fashion notebook, haphazard, we notice, for instance, from Jenny collection notes:

Edges trimmed with laces, run through tiny eyelets, over and under.

False fringe effects made up of tiny pleating, cleverly cut and arranged.

Other Jenny Effects.

Wee Mamzelle.

And then there is one little red-head who comes to play with Petite Adorable who has blue eyes. So she is taught that she is a Titian blonde, but that if she had red hair and brown eyes she would be a Titian brunette.

Being a Titian blonde, she knows that she is extremely fortunate in her coloring, yet not quite so fortunate in the colors she can wear. And also she is taught that even if it may seem a wee bit tiresome sometimes, she will be ever so pretty if she will be very careful not to get all freckle faced and peely nosed from the sun.

Tell you her colors tomorrow!

A nightgown using two shades of pastel material and two combinations using this same new idea in two-tone lingerie—the three of them taking exactly 4 yards of material! That's what this week's illustrated leaflet tells you about—and, by the way, one of the colors requires only a yard and a half; so you can rummage around the remnant counter to your heart's desire, if you don't already have a yard and a half of material kicking around somewhere.

Just get your stamped, self-addressed envelope ready to send to the Dare Department of The Washington Post and add some dainty new things to your lingerie box!

And then two more nice tailored garments from Bernard et Cie, showing the delightful ye practical lines that Fashion uses in her daytime apparel. The dress is a red jersey with bands and bows of blue and white jersey, and a steel buckle. The coat is of chestnut and beige mixture in a woolen material, with a leather belt in the same two colors and a steel buckle.

Parfums.

All right—here goes: Ambre, Al-Loe, Apres l'Ondee, Aroma de Heliotropio, Bouquet de Faune, Le Bon Vieux Temps, Candide Effluve, Champs-Elysees, Chevrefeuille, Chypre de Paris.

Those are just the first few of the perfume names we promised last week to give you. More tomorrow!

JELLEFF'S

Uncle Ray's Corner

DOWN in South America there is a great stretch of country sometimes called Inca Land. It was the home of people who were "civilized" long before the white men came.

The Inca King receiving visit from a chief, carried in a litter, as pictured by an Inca artist.

Inca Land stretches along the Pacific coast, from Colombia down into Chile. It is a region of mountains. Some of the peaks of the Andes rise to a height of more than 4 miles.

Amid those mountains lived the Incas, or ancient Peruvians. Their chief city was called Cuzco, and lay within the borders of modern Peru, 250 miles from the coast.

At one side of Cuzco a mighty wall 1,200 feet long was built. This wall still stands, and we see that it contains enormous stones. One of the stone blocks is 38 feet long, 18 feet wide and 6 feet thick.

It is a wonder how the workmen were able to bring such big stones from the quarries, 4 or 5 miles away. Probably logs were used as "rollers."

The chief man of the country was "the Inca," or king. He lived in a large stone palace at Cuzco. His word was law, and no one dared dispute what he said.

The king had at his command a force of 200,000 warriors. They carried slings, war clubs with copper heads, bows and arrows and battle axes formed of bronze. To defend themselves they had shields, and they also covered their bodies with quilted armor. This "armor" was simply cloth padded with cotton.

Inca armies fought in places far from the capital city. An effort was made to capture the chief of the enemy tribe, as well as his sons and officers. If this effort was successful the chief and the others were brought to Cuzco, where they had the honor of meeting the king.

The Inca ruler treated the captives kindly and gave them a banquet. They were taught the religion and laws of the Incas. After they had promised to obey the king they were allowed to go home and take active charge of their part of the country.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

DRY LAWS FOR BABIES.

THE Massachusetts Mental Hygiene Society gives the following advice on training a baby to keep dry. The training against day wetting can be begun at five weeks of age. Its beginning should not be delayed beyond six months of age.

Training against day wetting:

1. Place on the chair just before each feeding and each nap.

2. Notice how soon after feeding or waking he wets himself.

3. Attend to him at once without fail.

4. Hold him comfortably over the chair or sit him over the chair just before he is likely to wet himself. (See point 2.)

5. Do not let him have playthings while he is on the chair. Let his mind be on the job in hand.

6. Do no tleave him on the chair after he has passed water.

7. Do not leave him on the chair more than five minutes at a time even if he has not passed water.

8. Persevere in spite of inconvenience and disappointment.

9. By the time he is 14 to 18 months old have him wear loose knit drawers or panties instead of diapers.

Night wetting:

1. Do not give him any milk, water or other fluid after 5 p. m.

2. Make sure that he passes water just before going to bed.

3. Wake him between 9 and 10 p. m. and keep him on the chair until he passes water. Do this every night.

4. Put him on the chair the first thing when he wakes in the morning.

If at 3 years of age a child wets himself habitually either night or day they advise taking him to a physician or to a habit clinic. To this list of "do's" the society adds the following list of "don'ts."

1. Do not wait until he is a year old before beginning to train the baby. At that age he may have already learned the habit of wetting himself, along with some other bad habits. The longer the habit lasts the harder it will be to break it.

2. Do not shame him or punish him or make fun of him when he wets himself. It is apt to make him think of his failures when you want him to think of succeeding. Praise his successes and do not talk about his failures.

3. Do not use force to make him sit on the chair. If you do he may wet himself just to make trouble, keep you fussing over him, get even with you, or to satisfy some other of his baby wishes.

4. Do not make a fuss over him over wetting himself or over his sitting on the chair. If you do that he will learn that that is one way to get attention and every child likes attention. This may make him want to continue the habit.

5. Do not suggest to the baby in any way that he can not learn to keep dry, and do not let any one suggest it. To do so gives him an excuse for not trying. He needs to feel that it is up to him to try and that he can succeed.

BODY "BREAKING OUT."

J. H. writes: I have some kind of breaking out on my body. It looks like welts from a wasp bite. They itch for a while, but they soon disappear and don't leave any scar. They come on different places of my body and limbs. Sometimes two or three will appear together.

REPLY.

This is hives. Hives is due to a variety of poisoning. In most cases the diet is at fault. The offending food may be something others find wholesome.

The cause may be something other than food. If you avoid the cause you will be cured. No other treatment is required.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"The Danger of Boredom."

DEAR Miss McDonald: I love your column and marvel at your wisdom. But our home has never had any problem until lately. And now! My one and only daughter is only 18, just home from boarding school. She did not want college and neither did dad, so she is just at home, and you never saw such a wretchedly miserable child. It has been just one thing after another and now it is marriage.

We found out just in time that she was going to marry a perfectly awful fellow who comes of good family, but who has never done a day's work and never will. His people admit he is no good. And this is her choice. She does not even pretend to love. I tried to get her to visit my sister but all she would consent to was to go to work. There is no need for her to work. She is all we have. Yet this is her unreasonable cry when so many girls would gladly change places with her.

I can see we erred in sending her away to school. She has outgrown the people who were her friends here and outgrown their ways. She can not endure my friends and can not sit still a minute. She has been home since June and seems on the verge of some sort of collapse. I can not go away with her right now as dad has not been well for several months.

I am going to suggest you take our daughter some morning to the divorce court as a spectator. She will see there the future that awaits her if she insists upon marrying a man "whether he works or not." Every decent man works at something. The man who does not is a constitutional hobo and a useless member of society even when not an actual enemy of society. The girl is at that dangerous point where her school activities having ended, she has no interest in life, and is desperate. Why you refuse to permit her to work I can not understand. Let her find employment immediately or she assuredly will marry and disastrously. To work is a joy, not a misfortune. So let her find her niche and build her life in usefulness. Love will come later.

WORK ON BRIDGE

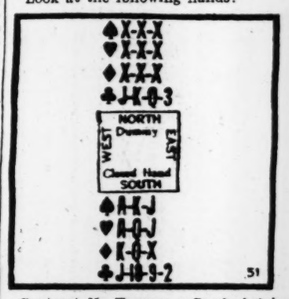
WHEN playing the combined hands as Declarer, it frequently is important to lead toward certain high-card combinations; and it goes without saying that to do so the lead must be placed in the hand which does not contain the high-card combination.

When the weak hand (which we shall refer to as "Dummy" because usually it is the Dummy) contains an Ace, or when it has a King-high suit in which the Closed Hand holds the Ace, it has an obvious entry which can be used to put it in to lead toward high-card combinations in other suits in Closed Hand. But sometimes needed entries are present but not so obvious; and it is here that the novice is most apt to miss valuable opportunities.

Look at the following hands:



Contract No Trump; a Spade led by West. Trick 1 is won by Closed Hand. It may be advantageous for Dummy to lead four times toward Closed Hand; twice in Hearts and twice in Diamonds. When a King is on the right of an Ace-Queen-Jack, two leads toward the Ace-Queen-Jack may be needed to take every trick; when an Ace is on the right of a King-Queen-x, two leads toward the King-Queen-x may be needed to win with both of them. The Ace-King-Queen of Clubs are Dummy's three obvious entries; the Trey of Clubs a probable one—although hidden.

Declarer should lead a high Club from Closed Hand, overtake in Dummy, lead a Heart from Dummy and finesse the Queen or Jack; if the finesse wins lead another high Club from Closed Hand and again overtake. If both adversaries follow suit on the second round of Clubs, eight Clubs will have been played, leaving four in Declarer's two hands and only one with the adversaries; and it will be perfectly safe, after finessing Hearts a second time, to overtake a Club for the third time.

Then Dummy can lead Diamonds and, if East holds the Ace and passes, Closed Hand can win and put Dummy in a fourth time with the Trey of Clubs for another lead of Diamonds. Thus Dummy obtains the four entries desired.

TABLET IN ASYLUM FOR AGED UNVEILED BY MRS. COOLIDGE

WOMEN WHO SUPPORTED PROJECT GIVEN TRIBUTE

Rev. J. N. Pierce Leads Rites at Official Opening, and Other Pastors Speak.

Unveiling of a memorial tablet by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge and an impressive service marked the dedication yesterday afternoon of the new Congregational Home for the Aged of the District of Columbia at the southeast corner of Thirteenth and Crittenden streets northwest.

The tablet unveiled by Mrs. Coolidge bore the names of Sarah Frances Tyler, Mary Gardner Smith and Mrs. M. Helen Sawyer, whose contributions made the new home possible.

The actual dedication, which directly preceded the unveiling of the tablet by Mrs. Coolidge, was conducted by the Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the First Congregational Church. The unveiling was accompanied by a responsive reading in which every one present participated.

Ministers Participate.

The Rev. Moses Richardson Lovell, pastor of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, opened the services with the invocation. A solo was given by Dorothy Wilson Halbach. A scripture reading by the Rev. George L. Farnham, pastor of the Cleveland Park Congregational Church, followed. Mrs. Will C. Barnes, president of the board of managers of the home, spoke. She was followed by the singing of a solo by Ruby Smith Stahl. The dedication and unveiling followed. The benediction was by the Rev. Kyle Booth, pastor of the Ingram Memorial Congregational Church.

The Congregational Home of the District of Columbia was incorporated in the District on May 3, 1926, but the home had been in operation for more than a year and a half prior to that date.

A number of years ago Mrs. Sarah Frances Tyler, a member of the First Congregational Church, made provision in her will that if the First Congregational Church had a home in operation within five years of the official declaration of peace after the World War, that the church would receive a sum of money. This was revealed to be $13,800.

Another Member Aided.

Another member of the First Church, Mrs. Mary Gardner Smith, donated a sum of $3,000. Mrs. Smith, during her lifetime also contributed her home at 1403 Twelfth street northwest, together with all furnishings, to be used as a Congregational Home. Mrs. Smith served as matron of this home until her death and was succeeded by Mrs. Margaret Hoffman. It was at this time that the Tyler bequest was released.

The largest donation, and the one that encouraged acquisition of the new home, was given by Mrs. M. Helen Sawyer. Mrs. Sawyer, who died on November 11, 1926, made a provision in her will of $39,629.98, for a home. With this sum the board of trustees of the home purchased property at 1290 Crittenden street.

The home at present is designed to accommodate women, but future plans are to care for men as well. The new home is said to have a long waiting list, and applications for admittance will be received by Mrs. Carleton R. Ball, 3814 Jocelyn street northwest, chairman of the committee on admissions.

Wets Reject Challenge For Debate by Drys

Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, announced yesterday that he had rejected a proposal by the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey to stage a prohibition debate in the First Methodist Episcopal Church, of Arlington, N. J. In rejecting the proposal, Curran stated he was opposed to "dragging a political dispute into a house of Christian worship."

The rejection was made public in answer to a letter from Noah C. Gause, of the department of public meetings of the league, in which the association was asked to send a representative to debate with the Rev. O. M. Geer, of the New Jersey church.

150 Messenger Boys Given New Uniforms

Smart blue uniforms trimmed with red will be worn by messenger boys of the Postal Telegraph Co., beginning today. These uniforms, with accessories, have been furnished to the boys free of charge, according to Thomas F. Dowd, superintendent of the company in Washington.

The equipment includes raincoats, mackinaws and leggings. Mr. Dowd said that this is the first time that a telegraph company has furnished its messenger boys with their entire equipment. The local force is composed of about 150 boys. The uniforms have been issued earlier than intended because of the inauguration, it was said.

Man Long Sought For Medal Found

War Department to Award Cross to Former Air Corps Sergeant.

Press stories have located at Canaan, N. H., James D. Long, former sergeant of the Air Corps, for whom the War Department has directed a country-wide search since August 18, 1928, to award him the distinguished flying cross, given him that date for participation in the Alaskan flying expedition of July 15 to October 20, 1920.

Mrs. Ruth G. Hicks, postmistress of Canaan, saw newspaper accounts of the department's search and notified it that Long received his mail through her office. A notification of the award was sent him at that address, and in acknowledging receipt of the medal Long has written: "I am very grateful for this award. Wish to thank you and those concerned."

Long was discharged from the Army on August 18, 1922, and after the award had been made all efforts to find him were unsuccessful. The medal will be forwarded to Maj. Gen. Preston Brown in Boston, commander of the First Corps Area, who will make arrangements for the time and place of its presentation.

Union Pacific Park Lecture.

An illustrated lecture on "National Parks" will be given tonight at 8:15 o'clock at the Interior Department Building, under the auspices of the Union Pacific Railroad. The public is invited.

Indian Band to March In Inaugural Parade

Reservation Musicians to Play at Charity Ball, Honoring Curtis.

The Indian, fast leaving the stage of American life, will figure more prominently in the inauguration a week from today than in many years because of the Indian ancestry of Vice President-elect Charles Curtis.

As a special compliment to Senator Curtis, the United States Indian Reservation Band of Tulsa, Okla., will participate in the ceremonies. Fifteen tribes are represented in the orchestra, and among the Indians are Chief Shunatona and Chief Roaring Thunder, both soloists and instrumentalists. Princess Red Eagle, who sings both contralto and barytone, will be a featured member of the orchestra.

Prior to the opening of the charity ball in the Washington Auditorium the evening of March 4 the orchestra will give a concert on the lower floor and immediately after the seating of the Vice President the orchestra will advance to the center of the stage, where Chief Shunatona will sing "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Another featured Indian will be Chief Yellow Calf, who lives in South Dakota and called on President Coolidge during his vacation two years ago. Chief Yellow Calf has visited Washington four times in the interest of his people and has been acquainted with every President since and including Roosevelt.

With only seven days to go, the inaugural committee today was to settle down to the most intensive work of its service to complete in detail the many plans made for the event. Stands along Pennsylvania avenue are nearing completion, as are those at the Capitol.

The committee will concentrate in the closing days on accommodating arriving visitors.

Special attention is being devoted to the exhibit, "Washington: Past, Present and Future," which will be a feature of the period. E. C. Graham, assisted by Sybil Baker, and a large committee of experts are making arrangements for the exhibition on the ground floor of the Washington Building.

Advices from San Francisco last night were that the Palo Alto Hoover inaugural special train of ten cars, carrying prominent Californians, will leave tomorrow for Washington. The party will be under the direction of Leonard Read, manager of the Palo Alto Chamber of Commerce.

Another special group planning to participate is the Handley High School Cadet Band of 40 pieces, of Winchester, Va. The band probably will march with the Virginia division, headed by Gov. Harry F. Byrd.

The Army has assigned two blimps and two planes for the work of making a complete aerial reproduction of the ceremonies and parade. Motion pictures and still pictures will be taken.

GAS IS BLOWN OUT, NEARLY KILLING GIRL

HAS CHANCE FOR LIFE

Miss Leona Weber, 23 years old, a roomer at 921 Eighth street northwest, is in a serious condition at Emergency Hospital after being overcome by gas in her room at noon yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Kauffmann, proprietors, smelled gas and traced the odor to Miss Weber's door, which they found locked from the inside. They broke the lock and found Miss Weber unconscious in her bed and gas escaping from a heater.

Fire Rescue Squad, No. 1, was summoned. Dr. I. Rutkoski, of Emergency Hospital, who also responded, ordered her removal to the hospital, where she is said to have a fighting chance to live.

Miss Weber was accidentally overcome, police believe. Policeman Samuel S. Smith, who investigated, reported that the window of Miss Weber's room was open and that yesterday's wind could easily have blown through the window and extinguished the fire as Miss Weber slept.

The young woman's parents, according to police, live at 123 Sutter street, Cumberland, Md.

Man, Held Drunk, Brandishes Pistol

Disarmed When He Leaps From Patrol, Menacing Police With Gun.

Shouting "Whoopee—get hot" and brandishing a pistol, a man jumped out of a patrol wagon at the Sixth Precinct Station yesterday afternoon, police report, and ran into the waiting arms of Policeman V. G. Lewis, who was in charge of the station.

Policeman Lewis prevented the pistol from being discharged. He then proceeded to docket the reveler on charges of intoxication and carrying a concealed weapon.

The name and address inscribed on the docket was Joseph T. Hopkins, 44 years old, 455 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. Officers said that they picked up the man on Pennsylvania avenue, but that they were unaware that he had a pistol on his person until the Sixth Precinct Station was reached. Before being removed to a cell 50 cartridges were found in the man's clothes, police said.

Auto Crash at Capitol Sends Youth to Hospital

Mark Bowsher, 18 years old, of 325 Fifth street southeast, was injured yesterday morning when the automobile which he was driving through the Capitol grounds collided at B street southwest with an automobile operated by William Thomas, colored, 36 years old, of 647 C street southeast, according to police.

Bowsher was taken to Providence Hospital for treatment for laceration of face and hands, and for shock. Thomas, who refused treatment, received lacerations of both legs, according to police. Neither was seriously injured.

MAN MOTORIST HITS AND LEAVES; MAY DIE

POLICE HOLD ACCUSED

Frank Rucucci, 31 years old, of 70 New York avenue northeast, was critically injured when he was struck by an automobile driven by Daniel G. Rigdon, of 110 Fourth street northeast, at New York avenue and Florida avenue late yesterday afternoon.

Rucucci suffered a fractured skull. Physicians at Casualty Hospital, where he was taken after the accident, said that his chances of recovery were slight.

Rigdon was being held for investigation pending the outcome of Rucucci's condition. Rigdon, according to police of the Second Precinct, drove on after his car struck Rucucci. Rigdon told police that he did not know that he had hit a man until a pedestrian stopped him and notified him of the fact.

Rigdon said that he then turned back, but upon finding no signs of an accident went to all the hospitals until he reached Casualty.

Yates Talks to Colored Elks on House Duties

The duties of a member of the House were discussed by Representative Richard Yates, of Illinois, and former governor of that State, at a social session of the colored Elks at the club's home on Rhode Island avenue yesterday afternoon.

Representative Yates was introduced by Judge Fenton W. Booth, chief justice of the Court of Claims of Washington, and by James B. Waters, secretary of the law school at Howard University. An address of welcome was made by Capt. Lewis H. Mehlinger. Col. West A. Hamilton was master of ceremonies. Frank T. Williams was chairman of the arrangements committee and was assisted by Charles A. Cornish, secretary. Following the talks a musical program was presented.

The nineteenth annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Council of the Methodist Episcopal Church South will be held here March 13 to 18, inclusive. Women's societies in the Washington district and the Baltimore Conference are arranging the meeting.

The council is composed of ten officials, eight members at large and the presidents and corresponding secretaries of the 53 conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church South at home and abroad.

Speaker Warns Against Wrong Kind of Laws

"Unless the American Nation turns away from the wrong kind of laws, we are headed for the rocks," Dr. B. G. Wilkinson, dean of theology of the Washington Missionary College, told an audience at the Arcadia Auditorium last night.

"A veritable hysteria has seized various social and religious organizations to settle by national legislation problems which can be settled right only by a process of moral education," he said.

DISTRICT MEASURES HOLD ATTENTION AT CAPITOL THIS WEEK

STREET CAR MERGER LISTED FOR ACTION

Pay and Retirement Bills Occupy Congress; Brand Nomination Up.

Congress gets into the home stretch today with a half dozen local matters awaiting consideration.

The Gibson subcommittee of the House District committee is scheduled to meet today to hold a hearing on the local police situation. While Representative Gibson, the chairman, refused last night to discuss the matters to come before the subcommittee, it is understood that they are of a sensational nature.

Action by the House also is expected this week on the Dale-Lehlbach bill, which will liberalize the civil service retirement law. The measure is expected to pass, although some opposition may develop on the floor.

Merger Action Expected.

Both the Senate and the House have before them joint resolutions legalizing the merger of local street car companies. Action is expected during the week in both houses. In the Senate, Senator Blaine, Wisconsin is expected to lead the opposition, while in the House Representatives Blanton, Gibson and Gilbert are arrayed against the measure.

Chief interest today will center about the second deficiency bill. This measure is expected to be definitely disposed of by the House before it adjourns. A rider on this bill reduces salaries of 2,000 Government employes in the District and much local interest attaches to its ultimate fate.

Another measure up for consideration, relative to Government salaries, is the Brookhart-Lehlbach bill. Rufus T. Stewart, president of the Federation of Federal Employes, announced last night that he is confident that the bill will pass.

Southwest Market Bill Up.

The Capper-Stalker bill to establish a farmers' produce market in the Southwest, the Vandenberg resolution to create a commission to study the local airport situation and the Capper-Zihlman bill providing free textbooks for children in the public schools of Washington are other measures on which action is scheduled. The latter has passed the House and is now before the Senate, where Senator Phipps, Colorado, is expected to abandon his fight against the measure.

A subcommittee of the Senate District committee is scheduled to meet tomorrow to consider the nomination of Col. Harrison Brand, jr., to serve a term as a member of the Public Utilities Commission. A protest against his confirmation has been filed by the Central Labor Union and the Peoples Legislative Service.

Thieves Loot Residence And Store of Clothing

Clothes valued at $150 were stolen from a store and clothes valued at $75 from a residence Saturday night, it was reported yesterday to police.

H. C. Winter, tailor, of 2312 North Capitol street, said his store was entered and robbed of clothes valued at $150. James Bower, of 90 K street northwest, reported the theft of clothes.

Man Seeking Wife; May Save Mother

His wife of ten months mysteriously vanished, and his mother, prostrated as a result, Eugene Rose, 18 years old, 214 Eleventh street northeast, is seeking his missing mate in the belief that only her return will save his mother's life.

Wednesday of last week, Rose said, he returned home from work just about dark and found that his 19-year-old wife, Mary Berry Rose, was not at home. Believing that she might have gone to visit her aunt, Mrs. Mollie Spitzer, who lives at Twelfth and B streets northeast, he went to bed. Thursday morning he awoke and found that she had not returned. Then he discovered that all of her clothing, baggage, jewelry, and $35 which he had given her to pay the rent were also missing.

Rose said yesterday that he has communicated with her mother, who lives at Harrisonburg, Va. Mrs. Rose had not been there.

World Educators Will Meet Here

Conference Tomorrow Plans Discussion of Postwar Problems.

Prominently known educators and lecturers will take part in the sessions of the public World Unity Conference, which opens a three-day meeting tomorrow at the First Congregational Church. Social headquarters for the conference will be at the Mayflower Hotel.

Dr. John Herman Randall, director of the conference, and Alfred W. Martin, of the Society for Ethical Culture, New York, will be among the speakers.

Dr. Randall, in a statement issued yesterday, described the conference aims as "intended to provide a universal platform for the dispassionate discussion of such vital world topics as authoritative educators consider to be absolutely essential to any adequate understanding of the new international world, which has arisen since the European War."

THE NEW WEEK'S BILLS

PALACE

"THE CASE OF LENA SMITH." A Paramount picture, directed by Josef von Sternberg, with Esther Ralston featured and James Hall, Gustav von Seyffertitz and Fred Kohler in support. Reviewed Saturday afternoon by Mary Porter Russell.

It is a pleasure to record, in the beginning, that "The Case of Lena Smith" is not what its name would imply. Mystery dramas have their place in the scheme of things, but not so large a place as they seem inclined to take. There is a possibility, therefore, that the surprise incident to learning that the case in question was in no way mysterious, had something to do with my warm reception of its mood, although I suspect the play itself of being to a greater degree responsible. Von Sternberg's pictures have a way about them.

There is a wide divergence in subject matter between the present offering and the underworld films which made the director famous, yet the realistic effects, the handling of situations and the emphasis of character types are distinctively his. He has made a most unusual picture. It is the biography of a woman.

Poor Lena Smith! It was Fate who had a case against her. Unreasonable and relentless Fate. Life was not very thrilling for a Hungarian peasant girl nor was the prospect of marriage to a stolid farmer. So Lena went to Vienna in search of beauty and laughter and happiness, and she found there all of these—and love. For a few short months life smiled upon her. Fate needed contrast to make the coming blows more fearful.

A dissolute young student officer is not likely to disclose a secret marriage to a peasant, especially if her tongue is bound by bonds of love. When Franz Hofratz tired of Lena, she became merely an incident of the past, a servant girl, whose eyes were to be avoided on visits to his father's home, where she had found employment as a maid. But for Lena there was still one ray of light in a darkened world. Secreted in the home of a friend was a baby boy to work for, to live for and to adore.

It so happened that Herr Hofratz, sr., was the director of the bureau of morals of the city of Vienna. A scrupulous and upright man. Inevitably he discovered the baby and there followed for Lena life's blackest depths. Disgraced and imprisoned, Franz dead, her baby torn from her arms, there remained only courage to see her through, to help her get her baby back—so that she might send him, fifteen years later, to war.

The film is strikingly original in its treatment, the paucity of subtiles and lapses of action providing ceaseless recourse to the imagination. It is more somber than touching. Not once does it become stickily sentimental over Lena's plight or make a deliberate effort to play on the emotions. Esther Ralston is a revelation in the role of the girl, and Gustav von Seyffertitz, as the keeper of morals, does the best work of his career. An excellent picture, unless you insist on a good time.

Even in that case the "Cooling Off" revue should provide enough fun. The setting is at hte South Pole, and a talented seal is starred, with Pickard, the Wallace Sisters, Helen Anderson, George Givot, George Moeser, the Gamby-Hale Girls and Wesley Eddy, and the syncopators in support. Very nifty, all of them, and there is an ice ballet scene of glittering beauty.

Preceding the news reels, in completing the bill, is a prelude by the house orchestra which also functions admirably during the showing of the silent feature.

COLUMBIA

"THE TRAIL OF '98." A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer sound picture based on Robert Service's epic of the North, featuring Dolores del Rio, Ralph Forbes and Karl Dane. Directed by Clarence Brown. Reviewed Saturday afternoon (second week) by John L. Coontz.

The lure of gold, the yellow peril of civilization for which empires have been overturned and oceans of blood made to flow by those obsessed with the lust for its possession, is the central theme of "The Trail of '98," in its second week at the Columbia.

In this particular piece it is he sought-for wealth of the Klondike opened to the world as the greatest get-rich-quick opportunity of the nineteenth century. Around that mad rush born of its discovery in Alaska is woven a story of the hardships of those who sought it there and of the love of a man and a woman.

Dolores del Rio plays the part of one Berna, for whose hand and heart there is but one person in the world, Larry, her lover, played by Ralph Forbes. Dark, beautiful, devoted, Berna struggles to be brave and remain true to all feminine traditions in her love for her chosen one, but his determined will to seek further for fortune after having once failed in an attempt to stake a claim finds her left to the mercy of fate and the acquaintance of a woman of questionable character. Berna becomes a girl of the Dawson City dance halls.

Larry returns. He realizes what has taken place when the gambler Locasto comes to Berna's room as he seeks to persuade her that, "no matter what has happened," he will accept her as though all were still as it was when he "stampeded" for the second time. True to all traditions of such complexities in life, Larry and Locasto fight it out to the death.

The embroidery for the week consists of a short sound reel featuring Johnny Marvin, of Victor record fame; a Fox Movietone issue; a special M-G-M newsreel, featuring the opening of Loew's palace of the cinema in London and the Columbia orchestra under the direction of Claude Burrows.

EARLE

"STRANGE CARGO." Pathe all-talking picture, directed by Benjamin Glazer. Cast of fourteen speaking players, none starred or all starred. Reviewed Saturday night by C. Ransom.

It was certain, in view of the public's unflagging zest for mystery thrillers, that the talk-films would soon take a try at them. Here is one of the first of the new product, so far as local screens have disclosed, and it proves to be an enticing bit of entertainment, interesting from more than a single point of view. It follows the conventional pattern of directing suspicion hither and yon among the characters and asking who did it and how, with spooky suggestions by the way and a more or less surprising solution reserved to the end, but this device is still far from having lost its power to fascinate and amuse.

The scene is a private yacht bound from London to the Azores, chiefly in the main passenger saloon. Sir Richard, the owner, silkily played by Kyrle Bellew, has just got himself well disliked when he vanishes in the midst of the saloon, with all the doorways occupied by pleasanter people. At least four or five of the ship's company have reason enough for wanting to annihilate him, but wishes don't work so handily. The captain's investigation only sends suspects to the brig. Mystery grows thicker and spookier and can hradly be said to fade altogether when the alleged answer to the riddle is forthcoming. Without revealing the secret, it may be said that whoever did what was done must have been supernaturally quick and clever.

Most of the players are English and the vocal side of the show thus benefits by the acknowledged excellence of stage training in that quarter. The varied assembly of British and American accents, shouted as they are from the screen, offers one of the special points of interest. The three women of the cast, Lee Patrick, June Nash and Josephine Brown, all speak and act effectively. George Barraud, Russell Gleason and Frank Reicher are others who do well. The dialogue throughout is natural and racy, with many palatable passages of humor.

Strange Cargo must be accounted one of the most successful to date of the attempts to combine voice and action in coherent drama on the screen. It shows distinct progress on the technical side. Yet there is much room to reach away from the present hard restrictions of the sound studio. Those who hanker for the old freedom of the silent days will not fail to notice, in this picture, that we sail the seas for hours without a glimpse of real ocean water.

Other items in the Earle program are an R. K. O. talking comedy called "Dead Shot Dick," which gets well away from the beaten path; a good newsreel that includes pictures of crowds in Rome, celebrating the recent Vatican treaty; and several Vitaphone numbers, in which Janet Adair, a charming singer of popular numbers, especially shines.

LITTLE THEATER

Reopening under new management, the Little Theater offers to its patrons the premiere showing of the official German war records, as interpreted by Paramount's famous German stepchild, the UFA.

The film is devoted to a complete chronological statement of the World War from its inception to the armistice, bringing in the most important battles and events associated with the late unpleasantness.

The photography is typically UFA-ish, making masterful use of multiple exposures and animated maps to indicate, respectively, the complexity of the situations and the progress of the offensives on the different fronts.

"Killing the Killer," a UFA novelty, is a powerful and exciting drama of the death struggle between a hooded cobra and a mongoose, sworn enemies of the animal world. It is easily the most intense and thrilling short subject that has been filmed in many moons.

A satire on the old silent motion picture, entitled "The Great Gulch Mystery," makes use of exceptionally long and numerous subtitles with a single scene sandwiched between them.

Of special interest is "Ruined, or the Tragedy of a Morphine Fiend," one of those first melodramatic specials of the "good old days," happily beyond recall, which is changed, in this more enlightened age, into a most amusing comedy.

AMBASSADOR

The Ambassador Theater, not the largest, but one of the handsomest of the neighborhood houses operated in the Capital by the Stanley-Crandall Co., yesterday added its name to the list of those fully equipped to present sound, dialogue and music from its screen, in addition to all of the silent features which always have constituted its major stock in trade.

The feature picture chosen to inaugurate the new policy is one of the most notable of the all-talkies so far released for public consumption—the Warner Brothers' Vitaphone version of Max Marcin's celebrated stage play, "On Trial," in which the principal roles are played by Pauline Frederick, Bert Lytell and Lois Wilson, supported by a cast of genuinely stellar distinction. "On Trial" will be continued through today.

Beginning tomorrow, another of the Warners' outstanding sound successes will be offered at Eighteenth street and Columbia road, when Al Jolson will occupy the screen in "The Singing Fool."

FOX

"BLINDFOLD." Fox sound-picture, with Lois Moran and George O'Brien. Directed by Charles Klein from the story by Charles Francis Coe. Reviewed Saturday night by Mary Porter Russell.

A story or play dealing with that most romantic of all ailments, amnesia, has a way of arousing speculation in the minds of those harrowed by the difficulties of life as to how it would feel to become so afflicted. One thinks with glee of flouting those sayings about lying on the bed you've made, or maybe had made for you. Usually, however, a discouraging factor in entering this delightful state is that a blow on the head is pictured as incident to its inception. It remained for the makers of "Blindfold" to demonstrate that watching another receive the blow may be equally effective.

In spite of the injuries to George O'Brien's head, which cause Lois Moran to lose and regain her memory, and regardless of the murder of her brother, which starts all the trouble, "Blindfold" is a crook drama with good manners.

An intriguing situation develops after Lois's innocent brother has been shot during a jewelry robbery. Her fiance, a policeman, arrests a man whom he identifies as the murderer, but when there appear, in his defense, witnesses of professional distinction and good name, with alibis unassailable, the case is dismissed.

It is for the policeman, then, to ferret the matter out, and he does so to the tune of excitement, with variations of suspense. His sweetheart's memory gone, she becomes the dupe of the crooks, and it is only through his bravery and the kindliness of the author that both remain on earth for the fade-out and the wedding bells.

Interest centers, to some extent, on the change of Lois Moran from the sweet young girl men should prefer to the sophisticated accomplice in crime developed by amnesia and her new associates. Although the transformation is indicated largely by smarter clothes, a new hair dress and the daring smoking of a cigarette, the result is much more captivating than the usual Lois, and it was rather disappointing to see the hair come down over her ears again when memory was restored. Ears, like cigarettes, however, are not for the good.

The musical score is a pleasant one, but the synchronization of the sound effects is, at times, lamentably poor. She does rather well with her expressions of terror and bewilderment, and Mr. O'Brien is quite satisfactory as the cop. Earle Foxe, once more the arch villain, is impressive, except for a scene or so of overacting. Several new figures of interest, including Maria Alba, assist him in support.

Buddy Page, still mastering the ceremonies of the stage, introduces, in addition to himself, the Glorious Foxettes, Elaine Manzi, a toe dancer with some difficult steps; the Dari Brothers, inebriates; Ruth Hamilton, comedian; Sorel and Louise, tap dancers; the Mississippi Misses and Marian Lax, soprano.

There is an orchestral overture, "Espana," by Chabrier, a thing of exquisite beauty, followed by the Fox Movietone News and a fashion reel of timely interest.

METROPOLITAN

"MY MAN." A Warner Bros. production with songs and dialogue, starring Fannie Brice. Directed by Archie L. Mayo. Reviewed Saturday night (second week) by W. A. Whitney.

Up to this time it has been my humble opinion that the Vitaphone was created for Al Jolson, but I fear that he must yield at least half the first honors to Fannie Brice, whose "My Man" has been held over at the Metropolitan for a second week.

Miss Brice's inimitable personality and vocal and histrionic attainments have made for her a permanent place in the theater world of this country, which is not in the least impaired by her debut in motion pictures.

Quite naturally, "My Man" is just one Fannie Brice song after another, with enough space in between to allow her to catch her breath and to allow the audience to marvel over the perfect recording of the comedienne's voice. Among the many numbers that Miss Brice sings are "Second-Hand Rose," "I'd Rather Be Blue Over You Than Happy With Somebody Else," "If You Want the Rainbow, You Must Have the Rain," and the old-timer and theme song, "My Man."

Of plot there is just enough to form a skeleton on which Miss Brice hangs her multitudinous offerings. The story concerns a theater seamstress who has aspirations for the stage, but who is more immediately engaged in being father, mother, and Dutch uncle to a younger sister and brother. Fannie becomes enamoured of a young man demonstrating athletic equipment, and on the eve of their wedding he becomes infatuated with the sister and the two skip. At this moment Fannie's office friends throw a surprise party and gently force her to sing "My Man" which she does so passionately that her audience is moved to tears. It is in this scene that Miss Brice rises to heights heretofore scaled by none save Al Jolson.

Besides Miss Brice, the excellent cast includes Gwynn Williams, as "My Man," Joe; Ann Brody, as the neighborly Mrs. Klein; Edna Murphy, as the flirtatious blonde sister; Surgurola, as Lawrence Landau, a revue producer; Arthur Hoyt, as the theatrical costumer, and Billy Seay, as Sammy, the younger brother.

Due to the length of the feature, the subsidiaries are limited.

6 NEW ACTS TO DRY UP CITY PROPOSED BY LEAGUE ON LAW

Clinton Howard to Give Suggestions to House Committee Today.

MEMBER OF CABINET URGED AS ENFORCER

Would Make All Policemen Liquor Agents and Ask $100,000 for Work.

A plan for prohibition enforcement in Washington and the District, more rigid in its provisions than any yet devised by the drys, will be suggested to the House District committee this morning by Clinton N. Howard.

Howard, chairman of the national united committee for law enforcement, yesterday told a meeting in the Calvary Methodist Church that he would appear at the District committee's suggestion and as a witness suggest that the following provisions be written into an enforcement act for the Capital:

Suggests New Provisions.

Creation of a Department of Public Welfare under a "capable secretary to be a member of the Cabinet;" making the entire police force of 1,300 men available for enforcement work; appropriation of $100,000 for enforcement in the District, the fund to be available to the superintendent of police under supervision of the District Commissioners; an act to empower police to arrest the buyer as well as the seller of intoxicating liquors; and acts to empower the police to issue search warrants for probable cause, letting the police authorities determine whether the cause is "probable," and empowering the police to enter clubs, whether incorporated or not, where there is reason to believe liquor is being sold.

Howard said that while his committee's investigation of conditions in Washington has not gone far enough to determine whether official graft "has rotted the Police Department, we have never known such a condition as now prevails in Washington to exist elsewhere disassociated from graft."

Howard indicated that his views on the matter would be given the House District committee. He has not been summoned by the committee, he pointed out, but had been invited to attend a meeting at 10:30 a. m.

Says Power Is Lacking.

"The Police Department is either incompetent or deaf, dumb and damned to the prevailing conditions of vice which infest the National Capital," he declared. "But there are extenuating circumstances. The difficulty in any sincere attempt to enforce the law in this city is the lack of power and division of responsibility which handicap your police chief."

Howard took advantage of the nearness of the date to the Washington anniversary date to give an account of the formation of the constitutional convention and the writing of the Declaration and the Constitution.

"One of the saddest things in American life," he said, "is the people's lack of familiarity with these two great documents. If I had my way, the law would require that children in every private, public and parochial school in the country committed to memory both documents." His statement was roundly applauded.

The presentation took place at the Cuban Embassy in the presence of leaders of the Latin-American diplomatic corps, veterans of the War with Spain and other distinguished guests. Col. Latrobe served in the Cuban army from May, 1896, until June, 1898.
